

Lone Skier Survives Cold

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For four days, cross-country skier Eric Schine wandered lost, hungry and cold, often hallucinating, in the trackless snows of the High Sierra before making his way to safety.

"I made the skier's first error," he said in a hospital bedside interview in San Francisco on Wednesday. "I went skiing alone."

He told a harrowing story of existing on leaves and acorns, losing his ski poles, breaking his ski bindings and digging out snow caves to sleep in.

The San Francisco bank employee, a former member of the University of Denver's Alpine Club, said he went ski touring the day before Christmas. His plan was to make it from the crest of Squaw Valley to Picayune Valley 10 miles west, about 200 miles north of San Francisco.

"I went down what I thought was a small run and ended up going down the backside of a mountain," said Schine, 26. "The streams and sun became distorted. I had no map, and there were no landmarks."

Schine tried to follow streams in the belief that they would lead him to safety. Instead, his senses scrambling in the snow and fog, he became more and more lost.

Schine said it occurred to him that he might freeze to death. He had no matches to start a fire.

Bone-weary and disoriented, he scooped out a snow cave and went to sleep. He awoke Christmas Day and headed west. His heart leaped when he heard voices — thought he heard voices. He said he was hallucinating.

That evening he saw a helicopter, but it swooped behind some trees and vanished.

"If it had come over 30 feet more it would have seen me," he said. "I yelled, but I couldn't make myself heard over the rotor."

On Monday morning the Placer County Search and Rescue Team began scouring the mountains near Nevada for him. But night came again, and Schine was still lost, and fearing for his life. He dug out another cave and slept.

He said he awoke Tuesday determined to get a grip on himself. "I got the direction right this time, and began following the sun. I didn't see an animal or a person for three days."

At a stream, Schine found his first signs of civilization — discarded beer cans. He climbed a hill; in the distance, voices.

"I thought I was hearing things again," he said, but it was true this time. He was hearing, and finally saw, the rescue team. He ran toward them yelling and yelling.

That night, at Auburn Faith Community Hospital, he was found to be in good condition despite the ordeal.

Carter's Trip Clouded

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, embarking today on an aerial odyssey to six nations on two continents, says the delay in enacting a national energy program will hang over his travels like a cloud.

And shortly before leaving today, the president said: "We will be reaffirming our dedication to peace and our support of justice and human rights."

The president left Andrews Air Force Base at 7:57 a.m. EST for Poland, more than eight hours away.

Carter said in a television interview Wednesday night that "energy will be the tie that will bind us together on this trip," because at every stop "what our nation does about energy will be a prime question."

Describing the unfinished business of an energy policy as "that cloud" which will determine "the leadership qualities of our nation," Carter said he hoped his trip somehow would help spur Congress and the American people to action.

Carter cited energy as a threat running through his itinerary when an interviewer suggested his travels to Poland, Iran, India, Saudi Arabia, France and Belgium lack a theme.

Rejecting this notion, Carter described the trip, postponed once because of the energy debate and subsequently scaled down in scope, as carefully planned.

"Every stop will be productive for us," the president predicted.

Talking specifically about Poland, Carter said that although it has a Communist government and close ties with the Soviet Union, it also maintains friendly relations with the United States and engages in considerable trade with the West.

He said the Polish government is "relatively willing to give people their religious freedom and other freedoms," a factor weighed in scheduling a visit by a president who is known throughout the world for espousing the cause of human rights.

Besides conferring in Warsaw with leader Edward Gierk and visiting monuments to Polish resistance to Nazi forces during World War II, Carter will hold an unusual news conference in Warsaw Friday for American and Polish reporters. To be broadcast live in the United States, it will be the first formal news conference ever held by an American president in a Communist country.

Carter will leave Poland for Iran on Saturday and be feted by the shah at a New Year's state dinner in Tehran.

On Sunday, the presidential journey will take on an added dimension when Carter confers in the Iranian capital with Jordan's King Hussein. Carter said he will ask what role Jordan is willing to play in promoting a Middle East peace settlement "and at what lengths it will be advisable for him to enter the negotiations personally as a government leader."

PLO, Jordan Reject Plan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization and Jordan today rejected the peace plan offered by Israel and backed by President Carter.

Iraq was reported ready to join hardline Arab opposition to Israeli-Egyptian peace talks, already strained by tough stands taken in Cairo and Jerusalem.

Israel Radio said a bomb killed two men and wounded two near a market in Netanya, north of Tel Aviv, in an apparent Arab guerrilla campaign to wreck the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks.

Palestinian guerrillas of the Marxist Popular Democratic Front in Beirut claimed the responsibility for the blast, and claimed 10 Israelis were killed or wounded in the explosion.

"No peace can be established in the Middle East without a PLO-governed independent Palestinian state," PLO spokesman Mahmoud Labady said in the Lebanese capital.

He was commenting on Carter's statement in a television interview Wednesday that it was not in the interest of permanent peace for a "radical" state to be created in the Middle East.

Carter reaffirmed his support for a Palestinian "homeland or entity," but said it must be tied to surrounding countries. He firmly rejected the idea of Palestinian statehood.

In Amman, the Jordanian government rejected the plan Begin detailed Wednesday before the Israeli parliament.

Jordan "completely rejects...such a settlement calling for the surrender of Arab territories to Israel, thus regarding aggression and putting an end to Palestinian and Arab rights," the government said in a statement issued after the cabinet studied the Begin proposal.

The Beirut newspaper As Safir said Iraq has offered to join the PLO, Syria and other hardline Arab opponents of the Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative in a military confrontation pact against Israel.

The latest developments came after Begin and Sadat detailed tough bargaining positions, indicating difficult Mideast negotiations ahead.

During an 11½-hour debate Wednesday in the Israeli Knesset or parliament, Begin spelled out publicly for the first time the peace plan he presented to Sadat last weekend at their Christmas summit in Ismailia.

Sadat, speaking at a Cairo news conference with visiting West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, restated his opposition to key elements of the Begin plan and underlined Arab demands for self-determination for the Palestinians and the return of East Jerusalem to Arab sovereignty.

Egypt is expected to offer counter-proposals when Egyptian and Israeli defense and foreign ministers meet in separate military and political committees next month to resume Mideast bargaining.

The decision to set up committees to continue negotiations was the only substantive gain achieved in the Ismailia summit.

Begin, declaring he would not let international pressure shift his stand, won parliamentary backing for his peace plan. The unicameral 120-member house voted 64-8 in favor of the proposals.

President Discusses Latest Middle East Developments

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, in a surprise development, says some Arab leaders have told him they would not object to a Middle East peace settlement that included a U.S. guarantee of Israel's security.

Discussing the Middle East question with television network correspondents Wednesday night, Carter backed Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin's refusal to accept the creation of a Palestinian state on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

He also responded to critics who say Begin has made no gesture to Egypt comparable to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's history-making visit to Israel six weeks ago.

He described as a "reasonable negotiating position" Begin's insistence that Israel retain the right to station troops on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip.

Carter said there is a "great deal of flexibility" in the Israeli negotiating stand, noting that Israel has promised to reassess its West Bank-Gaza Strip troop presence after five years.

Carter added a new dimension to the fast-paced developments in the Middle East when he discussed the possibility of a U.S.-Israeli defense pact as part of an overall settlement.

Some Arab leaders, Carter said, "had expressed to me that if a guarantee arrangement between ourselves and Israel should be worked out, it would be acceptable."

Carter added that the United States and Israel have never discussed that possibility "in any definitive form" and that his own preference would be for a minimal U.S. role in post-settlement peacekeeping.

In the past, Israeli governments have been cool to the idea of U.S. guarantees, not wanting to rely on outside powers for Israeli security.

Begin said recently that Israel had no intention of making such a proposal to American authorities but that he would be willing to listen to any U.S. ideas on the subject.

Despite U.S. and Israeli reluctance to establish a military alliance, Carter's remarks appeared to make that option more credible, particularly if it made the difference between success and failure to the Mideast peace negotiations.

Carter's evaluation of the Sadat-Begin Christmas summit was favorable to Begin, but he was unsparing in his praise for both leaders.

He reaffirmed his support for a Palestinian "homeland or entity" with ties to surrounding countries, but he firmly rejected Sadat's insistence on an independent Palestinian state.

"My own position is that permanent peace can best be maintained if there is not a fairly radical, new independent nation in the heart of the Middle East area," Carter said.

Carter Won't Promise Balanced Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, trying to balance a pair of promises, concedes that he can't guarantee a balanced federal budget by 1981 without jeopardizing his planned $25 billion election-year tax cut.

"If there was an absolutely rigid fixation on a balanced budget, then there would be no chance for tax cuts," Carter said Wednesday night in a year-end interview with television correspondents.

"But I think when you take into consideration that we have a $25 billion tax reduction for the people next year with about $6 billion tax reductions this year, that is $31 billion, (and) that is a major benefit to the people."

"I just can't give a firm commitment on how we will balance tax cuts versus a balanced budget by 1981," the president said.

His statements seemed to hedge his campaign promise to balance the budget during his first term. As recently as last week, during his Christmas vacation at home in Plains, Ga., he was asked whether the balanced budget was still a goal and not just a dream.

"Absolutely," Carter declared.

In the television interview, the president was asked whether he still thought that balancing the budget by 1981 was a realistic goal, given claims on the budget such as his promise of a tax cut. This time, Carter replied, "Obviously, I can not guarantee that. We have obviously known that to balance the budget would be difficult."

"It depends upon how fast business invests, how many people are at work, which cuts down obviously on expenditure for unemployment compensation, welfare payments — and there has to be some tradeoff," Carter said. "... It would take about a 10 percent annual increase in real terms in business investment with the present projections of economic need."

"We want to cut the unemployment rate down considerably and, of course, we want to deal with the problems of the cities... We also contemplate in the 1979 fiscal budget emphasizing anew our interest in solving the higher unemployment rate among black young people... We want to meet the legitimate needs of our people and at the same time not let inflation get out of hand."

Meeting those needs costs tax money, Carter acknowledged. But, apparently replying to former President Gerald R. Ford's contention that people would about break even between tax increases and the proposed tax cut, Carter said, "I think the benefits to be derived from our tax cuts in 1978 and 1979 will exceed any tax burden that may have been added."

The questioning began with Carter's tour beginning today of Europe, Asia and the Near East. "Energy," the president said, "will be the tie that will bind us together on this trip." Wherever his journey leads, Carter said, "what our nation does with energy will be a prime question." Until Congress takes action, he said, "that cloud will hang over the determination and leadership qualities of our country."

He said he hoped his foreign mission "will demonstrate to the American people and to the Congress the necessity for rapid action" on energy. Carter said he had "private signs... divulged to me by conferees" that a compromise can be struck on energy. "I don't think there is any doubt that they will pass this legislation early in the (next) session," the president said.

Carter also said he would introduce a national health insurance program in the next session. Congress "can't pass it this year," he said, "but it will be introduced."

In the coming year, he predicted, the United States and the Soviet Union will reach a strategic arms limitation agreement. Carter also predicted approval by the Senate.

With progress in that area as well as on a comprehensive nuclear test ban and superpower restraint in the Indian Ocean, the president said, "my guess is that President Brezhnev would be likely to want to come here to visit."

Carter predicted Senate approval of the Panama Canal treaty by April and said senators should not amend it because that would require Panama to have another referendum on the pact. "I don't think it would be fair," the president said.

Instead, he said, the Senate could express its understanding of what the treaty specifies about U.S. rights to defend the waterway after Panama gains control of it in the year 2000.

In a final prediction, Carter said progress in curbing unemployment this year will be exceeded next year. "I believe we can get it below" 4.5 percent, the president said.

Unemployment has been averaging about 7 percent.

Turning to the Middle East, Carter said some Arab leaders have told him they would not object to a peace settlement that included a U.S. guarantee of Israel's security.

OPEN HOUSE GUESTS — Persons young, old and all ages in between enjoyed the Holiday Open House at the Pickaway Historical Museum Wednesday. It was estimated that 200 people attended the afternoon and evening sessions to see the exhibits and hear the New Life Singers. The group, under the direction of Mrs. Danny Fouts and accompanied by Randy Wolfe, sang Christmas carols in the afternoon. Of special interest was the original artist's sketches of the past and present courthouses in Pickaway County. They were donated for the day by Common Pleas Judge William Ammer. Circleville Garden Club members decorated the Clarke-May House for the event. Wassail punch and pastries were served during the festivities.

Praise Runs High For Miller

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business leaders are praising the appointment of G. William Miller to head the Federal Reserve Board despite their strong support for the man he will succeed, Arthur F. Burns.

Miller, 52, chairman of Textron Inc. of Providence, R.I., and a director of the Boston Federal Reserve Bank, is to take Burns' place when he steps down as chairman Jan. 31.

With the election of a Democratic president, Burns' chances of reappointment appeared dim early this year because of his conservative money policies that antagonized labor leaders.

However, businessmen liked the stability represented by Burns' anti-inflation policies and urged President Carter to reappoint him to maintain business confidence. An optimistic business community is likely to make long-range investments, creating new jobs, they argued.

Carter, faced with this dilemma, said he contacted dozens of businessmen before choosing Miller as the nation's chief money manager.

"They expressed overwhelming confidence and approbation of Bill Miller to be chairman," Carter told reporters Wednesday.

Many businessmen expressed surprise but support for the choice.

"This is surely one of the finest appointments President Carter has made," said Heath Larry, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

The chairman of the Bank of America, A.W. Clausen, said he thought the selection was "super."

Irving S. Shapiro, chairman of the Du Pont Co. and chairman of the Business Roundtable, said Burns will be missed. "But given the president's decision not to reappoint Mr. Burns... we applaud the selection of Bill Miller. He has been an outstanding business leader and has the confidence of the business community."

AFL-CIO President George Meany said Carter "has made a sound decision. Mr. Miller is capable and well qualified and should obviously have the confidence of the business community."

"In replacing Dr. Arthur Burns as chairman, the president is clearly moving away from the discredited policies that created the last recession and prevented a speedy recovery," Meany said.

Technically, Carter is nominating Miller to a 14-year term as one of seven board members, replacing David Lilly, whose term expires Jan. 31. If Miller is confirmed by the Senate, Carter will appoint him to a four-year term as chairman.

Burns, who was present when Carter announced the appointment, said he has not decided whether to stay on the board. Carter "has chosen wisely and well" in selecting Miller, Burns said.

Carter, in a session Wednesday night with network television correspondents, said he hopes Burns will remain a member.

Carter said he named Miller chairman because "it was time for us to have some new leadership" and that his move was "certainly no reflection" on Burns, whom he called "so wise."

Market Report

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today in the first trading since President Carter chose a new chairman for the Federal Reserve Board.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 4.51 to 825.19 in the first half hour.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

After the NYSE close on Wednesday the White House announced the surprise choice of G. William Miller, a Rhode Island business executive, to succeed Arthur Burns as chairman of the Fed.

Many business and financial leaders had been urging the reappointment of Burns, whose conservative economic views are widely shared on Wall Street.

A number of top executives and bankers said they believed Miller was an excellent choice for the job. But analysts also pointed out that he was largely an unknown quantity to investors.

"Not only was it not Burns, but it was a man people are not familiar with," said Larry Wachtel at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields. "Nobody quite has a handle on his philosophy."

Wachtel noted that uncertainty about what to expect from Miller had prompted a decline in the dollar in foreign exchange markets, as well as some selling of U.S. stocks by foreign investors.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average closed at 829.70, unchanged from the previous day's close.

Advances slightly outnumbered declines on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 19.63 million shares against Tuesday's 2 1/2-million low of 16.75 million.

The NYSE's composite index rose .06 to 52.31.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .22 to 126.43.

Flynt Takes Over LA Free Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Larry Flynt, owner of a two men's magazines, will take over publication of the Los Angeles Free Press on Jan. 1.

Joann Fairchild, a spokeswoman for Larry Flynt Publications, said Wednesday Flynt planned to turn the tabloid into a national news weekly.

Flynt owns Hustler and Chic men's magazines and will publish Ohio magazine, a monthly publication, next year.

Ms. Fairchild said Flynt bought the Free Press for an undisclosed sum to "take the initiative and begin publishing the total truth no matter how controversial ..."

She said Flynt intends to keep the present staff of the Free Press.

Jay Levin of New York was named publisher, Ms. Fairchild said. She could not provide any details of his background.

Flynt said the 40,000 circulation would be distributed through Flynt Distributing Co., which handles his other publications.

Free Press editor Roger Gentry said Flynt bought the publication from New Way Enterprises, a California corporation.

Gentry described the weekly Free Press as "an alternative" format newspaper. It was founded in July 1964.

Flynt recently resigned as publisher of Hustler, an explicit sex magazine with a circulation of three million, after he said he had become a "born-again Christian" — an experience he attributed to the help of Ruth Carter Stapleton, President Carter's evangelist sister. Flynt still owns the magazine.

Girl's Body Identified

HAMILTON (AP) — Butler County authorities have identified the body of a young woman found in a field in suburban West Chester as that of a missing University of Cincinnati coed.

The Butler County Coroner's office said Nancy Theobald, 18, Cincinnati, died of strangulation. A knotted rope was found around the neck of the victim, according to Butler County Detective Tom Deaton.

He said the body was found Monday by a farmer walking through a creek bed near Beckett Road just north of the Hamilton County line.

Cincinnati police said the girl disappeared Nov. 16 as she walked from her job in a restaurant near the university.

Deaton said the girl was identified through her clothing and dental records.

She was the daughter of former Cincinnati Zoo chief veterinarian Doctor Jerry Theobald. Theobald now lives in Pompano Beach, Florida.

Feds Study Fattening Of Animals

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is studying the feasibility of what may be the ultimate in recycling — fattening up farm animals on other animals' manure.

The Food and Drug Administration has a 1967 policy against that practice, and says it has no immediate plan to change its mind. But it wants to study the arguments involved, particularly since some states have authorized manure feed additives within their borders.

The process of using manure additives involves collecting wastes from various animals, drying and processing the waste to kill bacteria and make it acceptable to the animals, then mixing the result with regular feed.

Ferguson Wants To Audit Lottery

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson has called on Gov. James A. Rhodes to force the Ohio Lottery Commission to get its financial house in order so it can be audited.

Ferguson said Wednesday he was unable to make a required quarterly audit of the commission last autumn because its books were in disarray.

Commission staff have been unable to maintain current balances, to post ledgers in order to reflect correct financial statements, Ferguson said. Not even exercise rudimentary accounting control measures have been exercised, he said.

In a letter to Rhodes, the auditor said the "utter disregard of (lottery) commission staff of good accounting principles and its apparent unwillingness to change" forced him to seek action from the governor.

He asked Rhodes to intervene through an executive order to bring lottery operations in line "with state law and proper accounting procedures."

Ferguson threatened to take legal action on his own if the commission's books were not cleaned up within 30 days, so he can audit the records. Lottery Director Gerald Patronite said the complaint "boils down to our inability to walk on water unassisted by the help our commission requests and he refuses to grant."

Since August 1974, the commission has faced the problem Ferguson complains of, Patronite said. To alleviate or minimize the problem, the commission has requested the limited services of an outside accounting firm on a continuing basis such as other state lotteries have employed.

He said the request has been turned down, and that Ferguson has discretionary authority to approve it.

"What he's criticizing is the lottery staff's inability to catch the errors of 10,000 agents, 1,750 banks and all that's involved with them in a week-by-week basis and have books balance each drawing week," Patronite said. "If you read closely, what he's not criticizing is our integrity or our ability to ultimately find the mathematical errors which are made each week."

Some states, including Alabama, California, Colorado, Mississippi, Virginia and Washington, have issued their own laws allowing some uses of dried waste as feed.

In addition, Florida, Georgia, Iowa and Oregon have started registering dried waste as a feed ingredient under existing laws.

The FDA's current disapproval isn't a factor in those states unless the product crosses state lines.

"The research to date has demonstrated that animal waste contains nutrients that can be used either by the species that produces the waste or by other species," the FDA statement said.

Soviet Bloc Entered

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — President Carter's arrival in Warsaw today marks his first venture into the Soviet bloc since his support of human rights earlier this year provoked the ire of the Kremlin.

But signs are that human rights will take a back seat, at least publicly, in discussions between Carter and Communist Party leader Edward Gierke.

Carter's program appears designed more to win friends than lecture anyone. He is visiting three shrines commemorating tragic events in Polish history.

Carter arrives at 10:20 p.m. (4:20 p.m. EST). After an airport welcoming ceremony, he and his wife, Rosalynn, will go by motorcade to the lavish baroque Wilanow Palace, their home for the next two nights.

Carter begins his appearances Friday with stops at the shrines — the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the Nike monument honoring Poles slain in the 1944 Warsaw uprising against the Nazis and the ghetto monument memorializing more than 300,000 Jews killed by the Nazis in 1943.

Friday afternoon, Carter will have meetings with Gierke and other Polish officials, and will be the guest of honor at a state banquet Friday night in Radzivil Palace.

Poland, with 34 million citizens the largest of the Soviet Union's allies, has prepared for the visit with practiced efficiency.

Scientists estimate that 1.7 billion tons of animal waste is produced in the nation each year and as much as 143 million tons of this can be used as animal feed.

While the agency noted that many persons might find such feeding repugnant, it pointed out that eating excrement is natural among many wild and domestic animals.

The agency also said that studies have failed to show any difference in the composition, taste or acceptability of the resulting meat from the meat coming from other animals.

Gerald Ford paid visits in 1972 and 1975. In recent months the shah of Iran, the king of Belgium and the chancellor of West Germany have been here.

About 630 reporters are expected to cover Carter's visit, including the first formal presidential news conference broadcast from the Soviet bloc.

Presidential aides say one of the reasons Carter chose Poland was because the administration views the country's human rights record favorably.

According to Washington sources, likely topics of the Carter-Gierek talks include U.S.-Polish trade, troop strength in Central Europe and the Polish role in relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

In the background for both sides is the large number of Polish-Americans. About 12 million Americans have family ties to Poland, officials in Warsaw say. And the joke goes that Chicago is the second largest Polish city. Its nearly 1 million Polish-American residents put it right behind Warsaw.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail VanBuren

Wants Parents Back Together

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl. Recently my parents were separated, and my father moved out of the house. Every Sunday he comes to visit us kids. (There are four of us. I am the oldest.)

When he comes here, Mom goes out, and if Dad is still here when she returns, she goes right to her room and stays there until he leaves. Dad always asks how Mom is, if she's "happy," and her health is.

He really seems interested in her. After Dad leaves, Mom asks how Dad looked and what he said. Abby, I think they still love each other, and I would do anything to get them back together again, but I've been told to live my own life and let them live theirs. How can I help?

WANTS TO HELP

DEAR WANTS: If your parents parted without seeking professional help in resolving their differences, beg them to give it a try for their own sake as well as for yours. But if they have, the advice you received was good.

DEAR ABBY: Shortly before our 16-year-old daughter was to receive her driver's license, I made the statement that if she were involved in an accident that was her fault, or was arrested for a traffic violation, I would take her license away for a year. Everyone in the family heard me make that statement.

Last week my daughter was driving and my wife was with her. My daughter was trying to look at a road map as she drove.

Her mother told her to stop the car if she was going to look at the map, but she didn't stop—until she hit a highway post about five seconds later.

Now my wife feels that the one-year penalty was too strict to begin with. I believe it will not only teach the girl a lesson, but will serve as an example to the younger children. If you say the one-year penalty is too harsh, I may reconsider.

POP

DEAR POP: Yup. It's too harsh. A year is practically a lifetime for a 16-year-old. Personally, I'll bet the highway post taught your daughter more about safe driving than the reprisals of her pop. If it happens AGAIN, lower the boom. For the time being, lower the penalty.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 23 years and my pet peeve is my husband's constant complaining about the sandwiches I put in his lunch pail.

He says he loves tuna fish, but it makes his hands smell. He doesn't like pork products, and he says peanut butter gives him a pain between his shoulder blades. He also says he is sick of eggs and cold cuts. And chicken and turkey are too dry.

Yesterday he came home and said a fellow had a Canadian bacon sandwich and it looked real good, so this morning I put one in his lunch pail. Well, he came home tonight and said he found out Canadian bacon was ham and he hates ham! Do you have any ideas, Abby? My man is driving me nuts.

NOW WHAT

DEAR NOW: Keep giving him tuna and pack rubber gloves!

Steel Firms Announce Price Hike

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Republic Steel Corp. and Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. have joined their major competitors in announcing a general price increase.

Cleveland-based Republic, the fourth-ranked steelmaker, said Tuesday its average 5.5 percent increases for sheet, bar, plate and most tubular products will take effect Feb. 1. The prices of other tubular products will be increased March 1.

Pittsburgh-based J&L, the nation's seventh-largest steelmaker, said Tuesday it would raise prices on most products 5.4 percent. J&L is a subsidiary of LTV Corp., which has voted to seek a merger with Lykes Corp., owner of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co.

Prices on all J&L sheet mill products, cold finished bar products, hot rolled bar, rod and wire, and continuous weld and lightweight electric weld pipe will take effect Feb. 1.

Price increases on tin mill products, structural shapes, including junior beams, seamless standard and oil country pipe and standard weight electric weld pipe will take effect March 1.

The latest industry round of price increases was initiated by ninth-ranked Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp., saying it planned to raise prices on hot and cold rolled and galvanized products an average of 7 percent Jan. 3.

The financially troubled producer rolled back its announcement, however, after U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel Corp., the industry leaders, settled last week on average increases of 5.5 percent.

Record Shop Features Unusual Countries, Artists

CINCINNATI (AP) — Business has been slow at Makris' Foreign Record Shop for quite some time, but the owner says he's going to keep his store open anyway.

At 72, Makris claims to be too young to retire and too old to give up.

Besides these days, it's getting hard to find a record store with Elvis, the sounds of steam boats and marching music from Hitler's Third Reich.

And where would his customers find their recordings of Biafran folk songs except at Makris'?

The record store also carries a wide assortment of music popular in such places as the Ukraine, Scotland, France, Israel, China and South Africa.

Many of his customers are from the "old countries," according to Makris. They frequent his shop in search of memories.

Sometimes the memories are found in unlikely places. Elvis Presley smiles from the cover of about 20 albums in a rack near the door. A record entitled "Soul Train Super Hits," is in the same bin with "The Sound of Steam Locomotives."

Makris' assistant for the past 20 years is 85-year-old Steven Zonas, who roomed with his boss before he was married. Even when business is bad, Zonas would rather stay in the poorly heated store, than go home to his heated apartment.

"I never wanted to retire. So when I did, I didn't," Zonas said. "I'd rather be here helping John than a retired restaurant owner with nothing to do."

The heat in the tiny store was cut off last spring by the landlord who reportedly claimed he couldn't afford to supply it to the shop.

The remainder of the building where the store is located is vacant while the county common pleas court decides whether to use it for a library extension project.

The owner of the property, meanwhile, wants to build a commercial or residential high rise.

No matter what the building becomes, Makris will lose his spot, but he's determined to wait out the decision even if it means weeks of standing in front of an electric heater.

It's a matter of principle to the man who was born in Sparta and who left his homeland at 15. Move, however, has something to do with it, too. If Makris moves out voluntarily, he has to pay his relocation expenses. If he's evicted, someone else pays.

Contest Held To Rid Pigeons

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Stephen Gaddis has taken the Harolds Club's $100 prize for the best idea for discouraging pigeons from roosting on the famous Reno arch, gateway to the downtown casino district.

Gaddis, a Harolds worker, suggested that the city place swivel bars across the length of the arch. If a pigeon perched on the turning rods, it would fall off, Gaddis reasoned.

The idea is to be turned over to the city.

The club started the contest after a fire, attributed to a buildup of pigeon droppings, damaged the arch in October.

The club said it received 349 pigeon-ridding suggestions from across the country.

One person wanted to put rattlesnakes in the arch, another suggested greasing the sign so the birds would fall off, and still another suggested playing a tape recording of a falcon's scream to scare the pigeons away.

Social Security Error

A 6.3 percent margin of error in a massive government program may not seem too far off, until one realizes that error applies to the Social Security program for a period in which more than $3 billion was dispensed. That 6.3 percent overpayment rate translates into $190 million for the six months ending last March.

At a time when Social Security taxes are about to go up at their fastest rate ever, waste and mismanagement in that magnitude is inexcusable. Errors of all kinds — underpayments as well as overpayments — occurred in 15 percent of the cases handled in the six month period.

Only small consolation comes from the realization that the error rate has been declining for two years. The massive loss of funds which has occurred should have been stemmed before major new tax hikes were proposed.

Assignment America

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — At this season of the year, some Americans flourish, and others flounder.

Christmas, with its pressures to please and be pleased (and somehow remain reverent simultaneously), is followed too closely by the New Year's celebration, involving a mandatory search for joy amid the counter and conflicting demand for reflection.

It is the most psychologically challenging single time of the year — a week that builds business for the nation's motley band of psychotherapists.

"When people are troubled," says New York therapist Dr. Otto Ehrenberg, "they tend to seek help through psychotherapy quickly, feeling rather desperate. They often don't stop to realize that choosing the right person to help them resolve their problems is an extremely hazardous venture."

There are all manner of "psychotherapists" looking for business these days. Some of them are practicing with no credentials at all, and no training whatsoever.

"The practice of psychotherapy is not regulated by law," says Dr. Ehrenberg. "You can put up a 'Psychotherapist' sign on the door, and no one can stop you. Under the circumstances, plenty of untrained people naturally are flocking into the field. After all, it's a nice way to make a living — lucrative at $40 to $60 an hour — and it has status."

To avoid being suckerized, potential clients should ask questions, and be cautious, in choosing a therapist. "The first question: Is the therapist professionally licensed? If he or she is not, you have no recourse if something goes wrong during your treatment."

What could go wrong? "In the last two years, three different malpractice suits have been filed against psychiatrists for sexual abuses against patients. That's one form of client abuse. Less apparent abuses, hard to prove in court, involve doctors who use their clients for fulfill their own psychological needs, their own egotification. A lot of people in the field are, themselves, kooky and disturbed. Subtly, they keep a client dependent upon them, extending the therapy far longer than necessary."

Dr. Ehrenberg claims there are many psychologists, psychiatrists and social workers practicing therapy who are not qualified in that specialized facet of their profession. "The second question to ask is whether or not this person has had training in psychotherapy; the third question should be: 'Do you belong to a psychoanalytical society?' Simply being a psychiatrist or psychologist is not sufficient. The doctor should have training in therapy."

And then, once the qualifications are established, a patient should ascertain "whether he/she is compatible with you. It is vital that you feel empathy and communion with a therapist, or you'll drift into a bad situation. Unfortunately, people shop around for a car or a fur coat, but only a minority are sufficiently sophisticated or aware to shop around for a therapist to resolve their emotional needs."

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Mutual fund shares are exceeding redemptions for the first time in any year since 1971, but the improved showing hardly reflects a renewal of interest in the stock market.

Most of the sales, statistics show, are being produced by the bond categories, especially the ultra-conservative municipal bond funds, which offer investors tax-free income.

The Investment Company Institute, of which most of the important funds are members, notes that more than half of all sales in October were accounted for by municipal bond funds.

In 1969, by contrast, sales of bond and income funds totaled only 11 percent of sales. The remaining 89 percent was in sales of equity funds and those balanced between stocks and bonds.

Sales of growth funds, the largest category in the mutual fund field, plunged during 1977, amounting to only $786 million, compared to $1.08 billion in 1976.

If it weren't for the municipal bond funds, in fact, the industry would again have a year in which redemptions exceeded sales. In existence for little more than a year, nearly $2.1 billion of them were sold in 1977.

The conservative tenor of the investment mood, as revealed by the ICI figures, is both a reflection of market conditions, in which high bond yields prevail, and what appears to be an unwillingness to assume risk.

To begin with, mutual funds are specifically aimed at reducing the dangers of loss by diversifying their portfolios among a great many issues. By investing in low-risk bonds they reduce the risk even more.

Nevertheless, many investors have suffered serious losses, some of which have amounted to 50 percent or more in a single year.

While many of these funds subsequently regained much of their losses, it hardly benefited shareholders who were unable to hold on.

and a good deal of animosity was engendered in the late 1960s and early 1970s.

The fact is that there is a good deal of risk in mutual funds that aggressively seek growth of capital. The ICI now says these funds offer investors an opportunity if they are willing to assume risk and retain their holdings for the long term.

Partly as a result of losses, the mutual fund industry suffered five straight years — from 1972 through 1976 — during which investors sold more shares than they purchased.

It's recovery, if it should be termed that, comes at the expense of the original mutual fund concept, that of stock market investments for capital gains and income.

From another point of view, however, one might say that the adaptation to municipal bonds demonstrates the agility and survival ability of the fund industry.

Sales for 1977 of about $6.4 billion, more than $2 billion of them in municipal bonds, and about $400 million in excess of redemptions, would seem to indicate that.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, Dec. 29, the 363rd day of 1977. There are two days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1934, Japan renounced the Washington Naval Treaty limiting the navies of the United States, Britain and Japan.

On this date:

In 1170, Archbishop Thomas Becket was murdered at the altar in the cathedral at Canterbury, England.

In 1808, the 17th American president, Andrew Johnson, was born at Raleigh, N.C.

In 1845, Texas was admitted to the Union as the 28th state.

In 1940, during World War II, German air attacks caused the worst damage in London since the Great Fire of 1666.

In 1941, Japanese invaders of the Philippines closed in on the capital of Manila.

In 1973, Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos ended his elected term and began to rule under a takeover decree.

Ten years ago: Seven men were sentenced to prison terms for conspiracy in the slayings of three civil rights workers near Philadelphia, Miss., in 1964.

Five years ago: The United States, angered over a Swedish government statement comparing the bombing of North Vietnam to the Nazi massacres, asked Sweden not to send a new ambassador to Washington.

One year ago: Violent outbreaks were reported in China south of Peking, with blame placed upon dissident followers of the widow of the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Today's birthday: Actress Viveca Lindfors is 57 years old. Los Angeles Mayor Thomas Bradley is 48.

Thought for today: Facts do not cease to exist because they are ignored — Aldous Huxley, English writer and critic, 1894-1963.

"You will soon meet a man and get married—he will be tall, dark, handsome and not too particular."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I read recently, in a woman's magazine, that the pain of arthritis can be helped by copper. My doctor absolutely insists that wearing a copper bracelet is valueless and ridiculous. How can there be two such different opinions about the same thing?

Mrs. B. I., Texas.

Dear Mrs. I.:

What your doctor said and what you read are NOT the same thing.

The claims about the benefits of wearing copper bracelets have been shown to have no validity at all. The bracelets may be attractive and may give some psychological lift to the "believer," but that's all.

Doctors have stopped arguing the point with those patients who insist that the copper bracelets they've been wearing have helped their arthritis. My personal feeling is that the bracelets are a typical example of modern quackery. For those who insist on wearing them, I say, "Wear them, but don't, in a misguided way, neglect good solid medical attention."

The article you read in the woman's magazine undoubtedly refers to the mineral copper as a content of copper salts which, when combined with aspirin, has been studied in experimental animals as a possibility for relieving pain. It seems that copperized aspirin may reduce the tenderness and inflammation of some types of arthritis.

At this time, the experimental work continues. Its application to humans will, of course, be delayed until its positive value has been substantiated.

Is there any way to predict if a person is sensitive to a new drug before it is tried? Can a person become allergic to a drug that they have taken before without any trouble?

Miss J. R., Ohio

Dear Miss R.:

Some people have a lower tolerance to drugs than others. People who are known to be highly allergic sometimes are sensitive to drugs that would normally not be disturbing.

It is difficult to tell who will react with side effects to specific drugs. Some drugs are known to be highly toxic. It is for this reason that when a doctor prescribes such a drug it is given in small doses, with a warning that if any unusual side effects occur it should be stopped immediately.

In some instances, skin testing for drugs and antibiotics may indicate an unusual sensitivity.

Although it is unusual for people to become suddenly sensitive to drugs that they have been taking for a long time, it does sometimes occur. Here, too, if any strange reaction to such a drug is present, it should be stopped.

McDonald's Named "Beef Merchandiser of the Year"

by Texas Cattle Feeders Association

How much lean meat actually goes into America's favorite hamburger?

Just ask the Texas Cattle Feeders Association (TCFA). At their annual meeting, the TCFA members named McDonald's, "Beef Merchandiser of the Year".

Because we use 100% pure domestic beef. No fillers. No chemicals. In fact, the only thing we put into hamburger besides beef is loving care.

Sirloin, Chuck, Round

Every hamburger, cheeseburger, Quarter Pounder®, and Big Mac™ is made from selected USDA inspected cuts. Including sirloin, chuck, and round. Beef that's even leaner than the ground beef most folks eat at home.

"Sear Sizzled" for the perfect McDonald's hamburger

Pure U.S. beef. "Sear sizzled" for exactly two minutes, to lock in the juices and seal in the flavor. Prepared with tender loving care. When you buy a McDonald's hamburger you get quality you can taste. From the first bite to the last. Thank you, Association, for the honor. And, thank you, America, for making our hamburgers your all time favorite.

A beautiful candle-light service was held in the Laurel Hills United Methodist Church on Christmas Eve at 11 p.m. Special music was furnished by the church choir with Mrs. Roger Egan at the organ and Mrs. Guy Tatman at the piano. Carols were sung by the congregation. Scripture readings were by the Rev. Robert Hudgins of Laurel Hills and the Rev. Jacob Lehman of Trinity Church. The sermon of the Christmas story was given by the Rev. Hudgins. The advent candles were lighted by Robert and Betsy Swepston and their daughter Anita and Mrs. Swepston held their three week old baby son. To close the service Donald DeLong of Adelphi M. E. Church sang "The Lord's Prayer".

The Women's society of the Laurel Hills U.M. Church held their monthly meeting at the church on Dec. 21, at 7:30. The group met at 6:15 and went to the Fox Nursing Home to sing Christmas carols for the patients. Later they returned to the church for their meeting. The opening song was "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear". Opening prayer was given by Mrs. Jennie Jinks. Mrs. Colis Hudgins gave the lesson from the Ruth Graham book "Taking The Trip Back in Time to Bethlehem." A manger scene had been arranged with a mirror inside and a card read "whom do you see in the manger?" Mrs. Phyllis Ross, spiritual life leader presented "Christmas is now-Christmas is a gift". Mrs. Hudgins closed the meeting with prayer, 18 members and 4 guests enjoyed the carry-in dessert course at tables decorated in keeping with the Christmas season.

Mrs. Ramon Maxson opened her home which was beautifully decorated for the Christmas holidays, to members of the Les Amies Sunday school class of the Trinity U.M. Church on last Wednesday evening, for their annual Christmas party. The carry-in buffet supper was eaten at tables adorned with Christmas tablecloths and lighted candles. Later the meeting and gift exchange was held in the spacious living room near a beautiful Christmas tree. Officers re-elected are Mrs. Maxson, president; Mrs. Marie Rice, vice president; Dorothy McClelland, treasurer.

The evening was enjoyed by — Mrs. Jacob Lehman, Mrs. Howard Egan, Mrs. Gilbert Armstrong, Mrs. W. K. Dumm, Mrs. Hugh Poling, Mrs. McClelland, Mrs. Don Kempton, Mrs. Ed Blum, Mrs. David Fetherolf, Mrs. Russell Moats, Mrs. Robert West, Mrs. Wilson R. Ross, Mrs. Bob Dumm, Mrs. Robert DeLong, Mrs. Clyde Stinard, Mrs. Orville Kempton, Margaret Chilcote, Miss Diana Moss, Celesta Hoy, the hostess and her daughter, RamaLee. Miss Chilcote is the class teacher.

The very able kitchen crew was the host, Ramon Maxson, his son Eric and helper, Don Kempton.

The Rev. and Mrs. Jacob Lehman held their annual Christmas party for their children and their families at their home on Dec. 18. Joining them for dinner and gift exchange were, Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Lehman, Kim, Jeff and Adam of Logan; Mr. and Mrs.

Quake Hits Near Vienna

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The Vienna Meteorological Institute said an earthquake registering 6.6 on the Richter scale hit 2,600 miles from here Wednesday and that its epicenter probably was in southern Iran.

Eight days ago, a quake registering 6.2 on the Richter scale struck Iran's coal basin in the southern part of the country, devastating three villages and damaging 13 others. At least 519 persons died and 671 were injured in that quake by official count.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded by seismographs. An increase of one on the scale corresponds to a tenfold increase in magnitude. A quake registering six can cause severe damage in a populated area.

Ombudsman Should Catch Injustices

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tucked away in a small room in the old state office building here, Alice Goodall attempts to lead laymen through the sometime bewildering bureaucracy that is the Bureau of Worker's Compensation.

Miss Goodall is chief ombudsman for the bureau, the agency that administrates a $1.8 billion state Insurance Fund for Ohio workers who are injured while on the job.

Much of her time is spent "following paper" for injured workers, unable to determine for themselves the status of a benefit claim.

But Miss Goodall, a veteran of more than 37 years with BWC, also has other objectives for her office.

"I should catch the individual injustice, the isolated malfunction, as well as the problems of change within the system," she said in a recent report to the Worker's Compensation Advisory Council.

"It is also the job of the ombudsman to serve as a defense against unjustified complaints," Miss Goodall said of her nearly $21,000 a year post. Established two years ago on a temporary basis, the ombudsman position was enacted into permanent law through a bill signed by Gov. James A. Rhodes on Dec. 15.

Miss Goodall would like to see her bare-bones operation expanded. She has only three staffers — a stenographer, claims examiner and clerk — and has existed on a budget of $57,802 over the past 11 months.

During the first 10 months of 1977, the ombudsman fielded 10,641 telephone calls, while 1,959 potential or actual claimants stopped by the austere, one-room office in downtown Columbus.

"Many problems arise due to physicians not providing the proper information on their reports," Miss Goodall said. "Many problems also arise due to poor rapport, distrust or even hostility between claimants, their attorneys or doctor."

The ombudsman then attempts to establish lines of communication between the parties and BWC personnel.

"These things move around from one (BWC) department to another," she said. "We track claims down."

It's not that easy, even for one with Miss Goodall's experience.

"I find a lack of communication between sections or department heads," she told the advisory council. "Many times rules of procedure are changed and the parties primarily involved have not been informed."

The ombudsman's office got off under the cloud of a small controversy when it was disclosed in mid-1976 that Miss Goodall's office phone was an unlisted number. She indicated at the time that she feared her small staff would be swamped by a deluge of phone calls.

But that has changed.

"I'm listed in the telephone book as the ombudsman," she said in an interview. And in addition to the phone load, "a steady stream of people flock in there every day."

Wallace Divorce Goes To Trial

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Testimony on Cornelia Wallace's charges that her husband, Gov. George C. Wallace, committed violence against her will be heard behind closed doors when the couple's divorce case goes to trial Jan. 4.

However, Circuit Judge Joseph D. Phelps ruled Tuesday that matters relating to financial matters — alimony, support and property division — will be heard in open court.

In his divorce petition, Wallace, 58, cited "incompatibility" and an "irretrievable breakdown" of the couple's six-year marriage.

In Mrs. Wallace's petition, she accused her husband of "cruelty and actual violence" — without specifying the nature the acts involved.

FRANKLIN STOVE

THE FRANKLIN

We've improved on Benjamin Franklin's masterpiece, but we haven't taken away its original charm. The Franklin is still an enchanting beauty that enhances the decor of any room you put it in—it's ideal for heating family rooms, recreation rooms, add-on rooms, etc.

FIREPLACE, BARBECUE GRILL, EFFICIENT HEATER
With the doors open, you've got a bright and cheerful fireplace, use the optional swing-out grill for year-round barbecuing. With the doors closed, heating efficiency improves considerably, the heavy, cast iron frame then retains the heat and gently radiates it into the room.

DURABLE, ADAPTABLE
The hearth, firebox and main top are made of heavy steel plate that will not crack under heavy firing. The Franklin uses wood, coal or charcoal and features a built-in damper control. Adaptable for gas logs.

Ohio Queen In Bowl Parade

MIAMI — The state of Ohio helped contribute to a six-day reign that started here today when Ms. Sue Joan Smith of Miami University in Oxford arrived to join 50 other Agree All-American Homecoming Queens from across the country, who will grace the 1977-78 Orange Bowl Festival.

The All-American queens program was undertaken by the Johnson Wax company in September to bring national recognition to college homecomings. Specifically, the program sought to highlight an integral part of life on the American campus, the tradition of the annual selection and presentation of homecoming queens.

Sue Smith, the 1977 homecoming queen at Miami University of Ohio, was selected to represent her school and the state of Ohio at the Orange Bowl Festival in competition with other college homecoming queens from her state. The other 50 Agree All-American Homecoming Queens competed similarly in their respective states and the District of Columbia. More than 450 college homecoming queens entered the first annual Agree All-American Homecoming Queens competition.

The judging was conducted by the Associated Collegiate Press, a non-profit organization devoted to improving collegiate journalism since its founding in Minneapolis in 1932. Equal Weight was placed on academic achievement, extra-curricular activities, personal interests and appearance.

Even before the All-American queens' reign began, other honors poured in as U.S. Senators, governors and mayors showered them with commendations, proclamations, keys to the city and other forms of special recognition.

And still more honors await the representative of the state of Ohio and the other queens. Beginning tomorrow, they will be given a royal introduction at a noon news conference and in the evening they will grace the reviewing stands at the band festival in the Orange Bowl. On the evening of Saturday, Dec. 31, they will be introduced to a national NBC-TV audience when they take regal positions aboard the largest float ever to participate in the famous Orange Bowl Parade.

Then on the evening of Jan. 2 NBC-TV's cameras will watch them present the colors of the 50 states and the District of Columbia just before the kickoff of the 1978 Orange Bowl post-season football classic. Later they will grace the dais at the Oklahoma and Arkansas team banquet at the Indian Creek Country Club.

Striking Miners Sign Up For Food Stamps

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Coal miner Chuck Mecum of Jacksonville joined about 150 other families who signed up for food stamps Wednesday in Athens County as a nationwide strike entered its third week.

Mecum, his wife, Brenda, and their 3-year-old daughter, Heather, are living off Mrs. Mecum's income as a bank teller. He declined to reveal her salary.

Mecum has been a coal miner for nearly five years at Meigs No. 1 mine and earned about $225 a week before the strike began.

He said he doesn't mind getting food stamps "because I paid for them when I'm working."

Mecum's father retired after a 44-year career as a coal miner. His three brothers also work in the mines.

"I don't know what else I would do," he said.

Mike Frazee, whose wife gave birth to their first child on Christmas Eve, also signed up for food stamps Wednesday at the Athens County welfare department.

When he's working, Frazee earns about $900 a month. However, along with 160,000 United Mine Workers members, he's been on strike since Dec. 6.

Frazee estimated the hospital bill for his wife, Judy, and their son, Matthew John, to be about $1,000. The strike has canceled his hospitalization, but he said he's been given extra time to meet the expenses.

"So far, we've gotten along OK," he said.

Frazee, 20, of Chauncey, has worked as a coal miner for two years. He used to be a motorcycle mechanic.

He said he thinks the situation never should have proceeded to the strike stage, but he is confident in union negotiators. He predicted the strike would be settled by the end of February.

"We actually have had no applications for welfare, meaning our public assistance, programs like general relief," said Athens County welfare director Charlotte Balding. "The miners have applied for food stamps."

She said the department estimated that 150 families have applied for the subsidy because of the strike.

"Many of these individuals are not directly in the mines. Many haul coal or work in non-union mines," Mrs. Balding said.

Planting Stock Available For Hunting Areas

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Division of Wildlife has free tree and shrub planting stock available for rural landowners with 40 or more acres who permit hunting on their property.

Red pine, white pine, black locust, dogwood, autumn olive and many other varieties are available. They were selected because they provide food or cover during the winter and early spring months for game and non-game wildlife.

"The abundance and variety of wild animals on any land area is determined by the quality of habitat available," said wildlife chief Dale Haney.

Landowners must contact their local state game protector or nearest wildlife district office before Feb. 1, 1978, to apply for free planting stock.

Ms. Smith, a native of Riverview, Mich. is a senior at Miami University of Ohio. She carries a 3.56 grade average and is majoring in retailing with a minor in home economics. She is the recipient of numerous scholarships and has been included on the university's President's List of Distinguished Undergraduate Scholars.

The combined academic average of the newly selected All-American Queens is close to a 3.3 on a 4-point scale, with 30 of the group having averages of 3.5, or better. Four of the queens are maintaining perfect four-point averages.

Thomas B. Martin, vice president, public affairs for Johnson Wax, said that "such outstanding accomplishments as these serve to emphasize the purpose of the program, which is to bring national recognition to the typically American values of college homecomings."

A $500 grant from Johnson Wax, will be presented to the general scholarship fund of Miami University in the name of Ms. Smith. Similar grants will be made to the school of the other 50 All-American Queens.

The company is also underwriting travel, lodging and other expenses for the young college women on their visit to Miami, in addition to supplying them with evening wear from the David Crystal Collection, sportswear from Modern Junior and jewelry by Trifari that they will wear in the parade.

All of these elements are expected to center the public's attention on Ms. Smith and the other 50 Agree All-Americans, with special attention being given to their New Year's Eve ride on the biggest float ever to roll in the 41-year-old Orange Bowl Parade. It is 150 feet long, 22 feet wide and 16 feet high and is festooned with 6,000 artificial flowers of many varieties. NBC-TV's television coverage of the Dec. 31 parade begins at 8 p.m. (EST), with that network's coverage of the game on Jan. 2 starting at the same time.

In addition to the honors mentioned, the Agree All-American Homecoming Queens will sail in the first Orange Bowl Boat Parade on Biscayne Bay and visit such Miami tourist attractions as the Seagarium and the Parrot Jungle.

Fortunately, the weather forecast for the Orange Bowl Festival events calls for pleasant conditions, with little likelihood that rain will spoil the reign of Ms. Smith and the other 50 Homecoming Queens.

Promises Of Donations Keep Family Warm

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Promises of donations of about $100 were enough Wednesday to convince officials of Dayton Power & Light Co. to maintain natural gas and electrical service to the home of a widow with six children.

The power company, which Dec. 13 turned off the gas at Sally Burchfield's home for nine days, was ready to turn it off for good Wednesday because of unpaid bills adding up to more than $800.

But the utility said it would maintain service to Mrs. Burchfield's house until at least Jan. 3 after getting promises from some Dayton area residents to help pay part of her utility bills.

"I feel real good about it, and now the children will be able to stay with me through the new year," Mrs. Burchfield said. She was to meet with DP&L officials to work out a monthly budget payment plan.

When the gas was turned off earlier this month, Mrs. Burchfield and her children went to live with friends and relatives.

At the urging of neighbors, the gas was turned back on Dec. 22 to enable the family to be together for the Christmas holidays.

"We have had guarantees of (payment of) a small portion (of the bill) from two people. Those contributions come to about $100," said Donald Speyer, director of public relations for DP&L. "We're also in touch with the Social Security office and working with the neighbors, too."

But the widow said it may still be hard for her to meet the gas and electric bills because of continuing medical expenses in treating one of her daughters who has rheumatic fever.

Mrs. Burchfield said her money problems with the utility are due in part to a paperwork problem with Social Security dating back to last June when her husband died. She said she asked Social Security to change her children's benefits from disability benefits of $197 a month, based on her husband's lingering kidney ailment, to survivors benefits of $500 a month after he died.

But so far, she said, the federal bureaucracy has not switched the payments, leaving her short of money.

Speyer said that the bulk of her bill added up during last winter's cold spell.

"But she's made only one payment to us in a year," he said. That came in June, he said.

Ins, Outs Studied

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The ups and downs and ins and outs of Ohio's elevator code enforcement policy were studied by officials from Montana recently, according to the Ohio Department of Industrial Relations.

Montana is studying enforcement standards for elevators prior to adopting its own codes.

"We feel Ohio has the best enforcement and procedures of any of the codes," Montana Chief Elevator Inspector Carmen L. Campbell was quoted by Ohio officials as saying.

Sickouts Cited As Reason For Bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Recent incidents of "blue flu" or "sickouts" among police in two Ohio cities have been cited as reasons for final enactment of the Democratic legislature's public employee collective bargaining bill.

House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-New Boston, said the work stoppages in Cleveland and Washington Court House placed citizens in jeopardy and subjected them to reduced public services.

Drinking Based On Reaction

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Your friend's long-term drinking pattern may well be shaped by how you react to his holiday imbibing, according to an Ohio State University professor of social work.

"How people react to an individual's behavior eventually can shape that person's behavior," said Thomas M. Meenaghan. "So the worst thing a person can do is to relate to someone who drinks only in terms of his drinking behavior."

This is something to remember at this holiday time of the year when drinking is often so much a part of the celebration, Meenaghan said.

The bill, approved by both houses of the General Assembly but vetoed by GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes, could have provided means to settle differences between police and their employers, precluding the need for officers to cite illnesses to bolster their contract demands, Riffe says.

Noting that under existing law, the Ferguson Act makes strikes illegal and provides for strict disciplinary action, including dismissal, the speaker said "the Ferguson Act is too harsh in its application, and elected officials at all levels of government have refused to enforce it."

He said the failure of Rhodes to sign the legislation, and the lack of support among GOP minority members of the legislature means "that thousands of our citizens have been denied police and fire protection, and have lost needed services ..."

Democratic leaders, with the help of major newspaper editorials supporting the legislation, hope to sway some Republican votes in an attempt early next month to override Rhodes' veto.

Ohioans would have just one telephone number to dial for emergencies, if a Cuyahoga County lawmaker had his way.

Rep. Dennis E. Eckart, D-Euclid, says he hopes for hearings in January on his proposal to require every telephone company in the state to establish 911 as the number to call for police, fire, medical and other types of emergencies.

He points out that several major cities throughout the nation already utilize that "easy to remember" number, and cites figures showing that in each instance, the "response time" has been lowered significantly, by an average of 90 seconds, which can be crucial in a life or death situation.

Ohio Tax Commissioner Edgar L. Lindley reminds Ohioans that rewards may be claimed for information leading to the confiscation of cigarettes bootlegged into the state for sale without payment of Ohio's taxes.

Under a 1977 law that seeks to end the practice, the state pays 20 percent of the price it gets in resale — up to a maximum reward of $10,000.

Authorities arrested a Kirtland, Ohio, man in Cleveland five days before Christmas and confiscated untaxed cigarettes from him, with a value of more than $5,000. It apparently was the first such arrest under the new law.

Information supplied by tipsters is kept confidential.

The department gets rid of the confiscated cigarettes by taking bids from distributors after Ohio's tax stamp has been affixed.

Hijacker Faces Psychiatric Examination

ATLANTA (AP) — A 32-year-old landscaper faces a psychiatric examination to determine his ability to stand trial in a Christmas Day airline hijacking.

U.S. Magistrate Owen Forrester ordered the examination Tuesday after setting bond at $250,000 for Nikolai Wischnewsky, charged in connection with hijacking the Eastern Airlines Miami-to-Indianapolis flight with 36 people aboard shortly before it landed in Atlanta on Sunday.

Wischnewsky, of Pearl River, N.Y., said little during Tuesday's arraignment, sitting for the most part with his head resting in his manacled hands.

At one point he complained of chest pains. A doctor examined him and declared him healthy, but Forrester later ordered him transferred from the federal building to the federal penitentiary here, which has a cardiac care facility.

Agents said Wischnewsky claimed he was wired to a bomb and brandished a pistol during the three-hour hijacking of the DC-9. At one point, he demanded to be flown to Cuba, according to Jack Barker, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration.

FBI and police negotiators were allowed on the plane and overpowered Wischnewsky about 2½ hours after it taxied to an isolated area of the Atlanta airport. After the capture, authorities discovered the "bomb" was a transistor radio wrapped in green electrical tape and the gun was a plastic toy.

FBI agent Don Cochran testified that Wischnewsky tried to rob a New York bait and tackle shop in 1975 by using a cigar box he claimed contained a bomb. In 1976, Wischnewsky pleaded guilty to third-degree robbery in connection with that incident. He first underwent a psychiatric examination and was declared competent to stand trial.

Authorities said he was on parole from New York at the time of the Atlanta hijacking.

Speck To Run For Auditor

NEW CONCORD, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Sam Speck, R-New Concord, said today he will run for state auditor in 1978 because he thinks there are problems in the way the office has been run.

Speck, elected to the Senate in 1976, said he expects a tough race against incumbent Democrat Thomas Ferguson.

Speck said his experience serving on the House Finance Committee and the Joint Budget Committee, could be of service in the capacity of state auditor.

Speck made the statement today from his home in New Concord.

He is an associate professor of political science at Muskingum College. Speck, 40, was the chief architect of the strip mining law.

Secretary Willing To Testify On Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressman's secretary, accused of perjury by the House ethics committee's special counsel, is willing to testify before the panel on what she knows about a card file containing the name of South Korean businessman Tongsun Park, her attorney says.

Gerald Walpin, attorney for Bonnie Robinson, said the secretary to Rep. Lester Wolff has "offered to testify before the committee as to all matters and to allow the committee to decide on the basis of that testimony whether she's testifying truthfully."

Special Counsel Leon Jaworski said Tuesday that Mrs. Robinson committed perjury when she denied removing Park's card from the New York Democrat's office files.

He also accused her of violating House rules and impeding the committee's investigation of alleged South Korean influence buying by Park and other South Koreans.

Mrs. Robinson was given 21 days to formally answer the allegations. She is entitled to a committee hearing before any recommendation for punishment.

Walpin, reached in Chicago, said his client had been denied the right to correct her Dec. 13 testimony even though she asked to do so "within a day of the time she testified."

He admitted Mrs. Robinson "did not testify fully in all details in regard to all matters," but added "There is no evidence whatsoever that she removed the card from the file."

Rep. Bruce Caputo, R-N.Y., a committee member, said the panel approved proceedings two weeks ago that could lead to a recommendation of disciplinary action by the full House.

He said the action could include turning the information over to the Justice Department for possible prosecution.

Caputo said Wolff and other members of his staff testified that Mrs. Robinson removed Park's card from files but later put it back.

Jaworski said Mrs. Robinson told investigators she had never seen a Tongsun Park card in the file, that no one else had discussed the card with her and that no one had removed or destroyed the card.

Caputo said he believes the committee approved disciplinary proceedings partly to warn congressmen's aides not to lie "out of a sense of loyalty" to their bosses.

Wolff has not been accused of involvement in the Korean scandal, and Jaworski's statement said only that Tongsun Park's name, address and telephone number were in an office card file.

But the statement also said the panel is investigating "the relationship, if any, of Tongsun Park to members of Congress, including Rep. Lester Wolff, including the existence of any telephone calls to and from Tongsun Park and visits by Tongsun Park to the congressional offices of Rep. Wolff."

Wolff, chairman of the House Asian affairs subcommittee, said, "I feel genuinely sorry for Bonnie." But he added the complaint against her "neither relates to me nor to any action taken by me."

Wolff said the card file "contained an entry for Tongsun Park" and added, "Mrs. Robinson allegedly denied knowledge of the card."

Ohio Court Rules With Consumers

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnatians opposed to a plan to base monthly telephone bills on measured rate service, or the actual usage of the phone, have won a round in Ohio's Supreme Court.

In a split decision Wednesday, the court agreed with contentions by the Committee Against MRT (Measured Rate Telephones) and others that Cincinnati Bell Telephone Co. must defend the plan at another hearing.

Cincinnati Bell applied for and was granted authority by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) to begin the service experimentally in its Hartwell central office switching area.

Opponents complained that while Cincinnati Bell described the system in exhibits before state hearing officers, it failed to mention it in published notices of its application for a general rate increase.

PUCO denied the committee's petition to intervene in the proceedings before the state agency, and it was from that ruling that the committee appealed to the Supreme Court.

Also raised by the opponents were questions as to how the Hartwell switching operation was selected for the Bell System's first experiment basing charges on numbers of calls, time of day, duration and distances over which they are made.

In its 4-3 decision, the Supreme Court ruled that a telephone company which includes a measured rate proposal as part of a general rate increase application must specifically mention the proposal in any notice published under the requirements of Ohio law.

It said further that "correction of the deficiency does require that appellants (the opponents) be allowed a hearing not only on the narrow issue of whether the Hartwell switching area should be chosen for the experiment, but also the general issue of whether measured rate service should be introduced into any area serviced by the utility."

Chief Justice C. William O'Neill dissented in Wednesday's decision, along with Justices Paul W. Brown and Thomas N. Herbert.

In another split decision, the high court upheld the aggravated murder conviction of Donald Steven Toth, convicted in Licking County in 1975, but reversed his death sentence and remanded his case back to lower courts for further proceedings.

The court said Licking County Common Pleas Court improperly

Chance of snow tonight and Friday, possibly mixed with rain Friday. Lows tonight in the mid 20s. Highs Friday in the upper 30s and low 40s. Chance of precipitation 40 percent tonight and 70 percent Friday.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A gradual warming trend will continue in Ohio today and Friday as a low pressure system from the west heads toward the state with a combination of rain and snow.

The low cell is forming over Texas and will move to the lower Mississippi Valley Friday. Snow will spread north over most of Ohio tonight, but the warming temperatures will change the snow to rain in the south Friday.

High temperatures this afternoon will range from the mid 20s to the mid 30s. And by Friday afternoon, the mercury will climb into the 30s and low 40s.

Santa-Type Robber Gets Stuck

HOUSTON (AP) — Scott Sullivan, 29, was surprised when he heard someone talking in his fireplace.

"Hey, anybody out there? I'm in the chimney," a man's voice said.

Sullivan said the man explained he had climbed into the chimney to burglarize the house but got stuck. Sullivan called the fire department.

"They didn't believe me, so I called police," Sullivan said.

The police didn't believe him either, Sullivan said, but decided to investigate after calling back to confirm the report. Investigators arrived and then called firemen again, who removed a 20-year-old, soot-covered man from the chimney.

Dental Care Is Luxury

CLEVELAND (AP) — About 20 percent of the 2.25 million residents of a five-county region around Cleveland do not earn enough to afford to pay their own dental bills, according to a study by the Metropolitan Health Planning Corp.

The health systems agency said Wednesday the burden of dental care falls heaviest on the 241,400 persons who earn enough to purchase life's bare necessities, but to whom dental expenses are an unaffordable luxury.

That group includes individuals with annual incomes between $3,000 and $6,000 and families with earnings between $5,000 and $10,000. Those who earn less, are eligible for dental care under relief programs, the study said.

About another half of the residents of Cuyahoga, Geauga, Lake, Lorain and Medina counties can afford some dental care, but would be severely burdened by major dental expenses, according to the report.

It said that an estimated 1.7 million persons in the region suffer from untreated cavities. But the report said the average incidence of untreated tooth decay for each person is below the national average, because 93 percent of the people living in the area drink fluoridated water.

The report said 1.4 million people, or 68.9 percent of the population over the age of 6, suffer from diseases of the bone and gum tissue surrounding the teeth.

And, it said that 39,200 school children between the ages of 6 and 11 suffer from irregularities in the position of the teeth or in the relationship of the upper and lower jaws that is severe enough to require treatment for other than cosmetic purposes.

The MHPC said its data suggests that certain areas, especially within Cleveland, remain underserved.

Recommendations in the plan included:

—Calls for fluoridation of water supplies for all communities with populations of fewer than 5,000 persons by 1983. It said all communities in the region with more than 5,000 persons already have centrally fluoridated water supplies, but that 7 percent of the residents in the region lack such facilities. All of Geauga County and parts of Lorain and Medina counties are without a central source of fluoridation at this time, it said.

—Proposed expansion of dental health education activities in the Cleveland area and continuing the Ohio Program for Dental Health Education in schools through 1983.

—Proposed expansion of dentistry courses to alert dental practitioners to the needs of a broader population base.

"The recommendations of this plan stress dental health education as the key to overcoming the personal and sociological barriers to dental health — ignorance, misunderstanding and fear," the report said.

Fishing Spots On Erie Listed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "Lake Erie Fishing Services and Facilities" is the name of a new publication designed to acquaint anglers with fishing opportunities along Ohio's Lake Erie shoreline.

The publication is produced by the Division of Wildlife and is available at no charge from the Ohio Department of Natural Resources' Publications Center in Columbus.

It is divided into two sections, the first listing vendors offering fishing-related services, the other detailing access facilities available to anglers.

The first section has the name, address and telephone number for vendors, along with maps showing their locations and a graph indicating the services they offer.

The second section lists the access facilities by ownership and type of fishing available. It also includes maps showing location of the facilities and directions for reaching each site.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

FOR FRIDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): You may have moments of depression. Don't try to cover them up with an "act." Banish them completely by getting out and doing things which stimulate your mind.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Favorable stellar influences now promise increasing gains. But some minor situations may have to be ironed out before you can go ahead with long-range plans.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Don't let a prevalent spirit of restlessness and nervous energy lead you into erratic behavior. You could land in "hot water."

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Rumors now circulating could undermine your confidence, if you let them. Use that optimism and good judgment of yours and ignore them.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Morning hours may be somewhat on the dull side, but momentum picks up after noon; should lead to bright prospects - both business-wise and socially.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Watch emotions carefully. Don't let sudden enthusiasms carry you to a point where they actually become obsessions.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Do not become disillusioned if some disapprove of your ideas and are unwilling to fall in with your plans. If understanding and tolerant, you just COULD bring them around.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Make no decisions until all avenues have been explored. Should temporary deterrents appear, handle them discerningly, with clear-headedness, smart control.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Your ingenuity, foresight and intuition should be at a peak now. A good time to look into new offerings and gauge their real value.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Stellar influences now warn against misleading influences, deceit and dubious schemes. Be alert and counteract with your innate integrity and good judgment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): If you really have time for "extras" on a busy day, take them on judiciously. Don't overtax energies, and don't hesitate to ask for help if you find yourself in a bind.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Plenty of competition about, but don't let it dismay you. Anchor your sails to the well-founded and engage opponents with enthusiasm.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with practically all of the traits and talents needed to live a happy and successful life. Unfortunately, however, your tendency toward self-doubt and your fears of what others may think of your efforts often prevent you from realizing your full potential. Inherently, you are an extremely ambitious individual, you work hard and you dream of glorious achievements, until you can develop self-confidence and a surety of attaining your goals, many of your efforts will be in vain - causing you to become moody and depressed even to the point of melancholy. Belief in yourself, however, can lead you to great heights. You have a fine mind and, extremely versatile, could excel in many fields, notably: business management, finance, the law, statesmanship and literature.

Unique Music Box Built By Individual

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Lathe operator Kenneth Smith wanted a music box so he built one.

It is seven feet tall, 13 feet wide and weighs 1,000 pounds. The sound is best described as robust.

Smith recently completed construction of his own Gavioli Grand Band Organ, the kind that is taken to state fairs and circus parades on its own wagon. Smith said it is the only American built organ of its kind.

He became intrigued by that kind of organ when he saw a German model being played at an Ohio State Fair in 1963.

"When I saw the organ and heard the music I became fascinated," he said. "I wanted one of my own."

He began looking into the possibilities and it took five years for him to decide to build his own "music box."

What turned into an elaborate project had meager beginnings.

"I became a student by scrutiny," Smith said. He used sketches and measurements from the organ an amusement company shipped to the state fair. He also took measurements and studied construction of other organs after failing to find books or blueprints on what he wanted.

The casing for his organ is made of Philippine mahogany bought at a local lumber firm.

"But most of it is made from packing crates I got from here," Smith said, referring to Battelle laboratories where he works.

The Gavioli organ uses a European system of playing music from hand-punched holes in cardboard which are read as musical notes. The cardboard moves along a tracking bar, air is blown through the holes and a series of valves are activated to produce music from the pipes. Smith compared the organ operation to a player piano.

"Voicing the pipes so they would speak the tone they are supposed to was the most difficult part of building the organ," he said. "Most of it was done by trial and error."

"I built two organs to get this one but I only have one organ to show for all the work," he said, speaking of the numerous parts that were mistakes and now gather dust in his workshop.

Smith carved and painted some cherubs, reclining nude figures and trim which decorate the front of the organ. He enrolled in an adult education class to learn oil painting so he could decorate the organ.

"I could have hired someone to do the painting but I wanted to do it all myself," he said. "I breathed life into the organ's pipes and I wanted to add the finishing touches."

State Auditor Releases Funds

State Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson's office reported today that $13,319,376.62 in public assistance and special activities payments for November have been sent to Ohio's 88 counties.

The public assistance, $7,654,300.50, went to 87 counties to help cover their general relief payments and administrative costs of welfare operations, Ferguson said.

General relief payments come primarily from state funds. Counties pay a portion.

Ferguson said $5,665,076.12 of the November payments, for special activities, went to 87 counties for administering and purchasing family and children services such as day care, family planning and marital counseling programs.

Special activities payments come from state and federal funds.

The public assistance, general relief payments ranged from $674.99 in Hocking County to $2,246,606.14 in Cuyahoga County, while special activities payments ranged from $28.35 in Fulton County to $1,338,493.25 in Franklin County.

Distribution of public assistance to Pickaway County is $2,595.58 and special activity moneys is $24,564.53.

Grain Buying Practices Delayed, Not Stopped By Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate aides say a hearing into the government's world crop estimating procedures and the grain buying practices of the Soviet Union still is in the works, but may be delayed for at least another month.

The hearing was requested of the Senate Agriculture committee by Sen. Robert Doe, R-Kan., following disclosure in Moscow almost two months ago that the 1977 Soviet grain harvest was much smaller than had been estimated by the CIA and the Agriculture Department.

Sens. George McGovern, D-S.D., and Richard Stone, D-Fla., also sought a hearing to explore the latest surge of grain purchases by the Soviet Union and how those bear upon U.S. grain prices.

Meanwhile, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says that "we would welcome a hearing into this matter" of estimating Soviet grain production and how the purchases are conducted.

The CIA and the department, despite some opinions to the contrary, were estimating Soviet grain output at 215 million metric tons until Nov. 2, when Soviet president Leonid I. Brezhnev announced the harvest tentatively at 194 million tons.

The harvest was revised upward slightly by Moscow two weeks ago to 195.5 million tons.

A metric ton is 2,205 pounds. Bergland told reporters last Friday that, "I am not sure that we were over optimistic" in estimating Soviet grain production although he was in favor of a Senate hearing on the subject. He said there were difficulties in translating the effects of weather on the Soviet crops.

Bergland was asked about estimates in the private grain trade and in the department itself which indicated prior to Nov. 2 that the Soviet harvest might be closer to 200 million tons than the 215 million tons officially forecast.

"Well, it is a matter of whether or not the advice we get from the rumors we pick up are credible or not," Bergland replied. "When we publish a report it is official. I can't deal in hearsay."

Bergland was then asked what might have happened to the farm prices of U.S. grain if his department had "expressed some public doubt" about the official estimate of 215 million tons.

"No effect whatsoever," Bergland said. "The trade had already taken into account what had taken place."

In other words, he said, when Moscow announced its grain estimate on Nov. 2, "the market already knew that the Russian crop was — had been — hurt, and they didn't have any significant market impact then or since."

The Soviet Union is committed to buy a minimum of 6 million tons of wheat and corn annually beginning with deliveries each Oct. 1 for five years. In the first year which just ended, the Soviets bought about the minimum quantity.

But because of this year's smaller harvest, the Soviet Union already has bought about 6.4 million tons of grain — including about 4.1 million of corn and 2.3 million of wheat — and has been given permission by the United States to buy a total of up to 15 million

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

Happy Holidays to all! The library staff understands that Santa Claus had a very busy Christmas Eve. In fact, he had so many good boys and girls in Pickaway County to deliver toys to, that he didn't have room in his sleigh to bring new books for the library. However, he did leave us a promise that we'll be getting some book surprises soon! Maybe you'll be able to read about them in next week's "Sneek-a-Peek."

Meanwhile, we have a very special "people" surprise for our young patrons, parents and teachers. As of yesterday, Mrs. Alma Schneider of Circleville has joined our staff where she will take over as the new children's librarian. Do stop in and introduce yourself to her soon. She will be happy to listen to any ideas or suggestions you may have on how the Children's Room can better serve the public.

We hope everyone has a happy and productive 1978 that will be filled with frequent library visits. The library only exists to serve you, so — if you aren't already a regular patron — make a resolution to become one this year!

Quick OU Defense Ready For Oranges

MIAMI (AP) — The no-name defense is back in the town where it originated, only this one belongs to the Oklahoma Sooners rather than the Miami Dolphins.

"We had no All-Americans and we were the no-name defense when we started out, but we ended up with four," says Larry Lacewell, defensive coordinator of the second-ranked Sooners, who meet No. 6 Arkansas in the Orange Bowl Monday night.

Actually, Oklahoma had two first-team 1977 All-Americans in linebacker George Cumby and safety Zac Henderson, while linebacker Daryl Hunt made the second team and nose guard Reggie Kinlaw was a third-teamer.

The defensive unit also includes ends Reggie Mathis, a former back-up receiver, and Bruce Taton, a fourth-string quarterback as recently as last spring. But it is Cumby whose name was the least known of all when the season began.

"He is," says Lacewell, "the last of the great recruiting stories. It won't happen again because with the 30-scholarship limit you'd be scared to take someone from as small a high school as his. I coached 20 miles from there and I never heard of it."

The Oklahoma media guide lists Cumby's home town as Gorman, Tex., but Cumby says Gorman refers to Thomas K. Gorman High School in Tyler — "Just a little Catholic school on a hill" — and he actually hails from Larue, a few miles up the road.

Now a 6-foot, 203-pound lightning-quick sophomore, Cumby's only college offers were from North Texas State and Henderson County Junior College.

The Sooners learned about Cumby, who played running back and linebacker, from a high school coach in Tyler who was a friend of Wendell Mosley, now the head coach at Texas Southern but then an assistant at Oklahoma.

"We got some films of him," Lacewell remembers, "and it looked like one of those old Charlie Chaplin movies — whoosh, whoosh whoosh. He ranged from sideline to sideline and he was involved in play after play. I wondered can he really be that quick but, by God, he was."

Oklahoma was convinced; Cumby wasn't.

"We had to go back down there and beg him to come here," says Lacewell. "Thank the Lord we did."

It was even harder to convince Cumby that he should switch from fullback to linebacker. His first reaction was a loud guffaw.

"I guarantee you he's the best running back in America playing linebacker," Lacewell says. "But Kenny King's our No. 1 fullback and he's an all-day sucker there. Cumby would have been our 'slow' fullback. He 'only' runs a 4.55-4.6 forty."

Cumby wound up becoming an All-

America linebacker as well as Associated Press Defensive Player of the Year in the Big Eight Conference.

County Cage Battles Set For Friday

Fans have a real treat in store for them as rival meets rival in county action Friday night. Westfall will visit Teays Valley and Circleville will enter the Logan Elm encampment.

There should be standing room only when the Mustangs try to take a second victory in a row from the Vikings who will be looking for an upset.

Westfall holds fourth place in the Scioto Valley Conference and has a 3-4 overall record. Teays Valley is in sixth place in the South Central Ohio League and is 3-3 for all games.

The Vikings lead the county in team offense with an average of 66 points per contest, but the Mustangs are right behind with a 63.4 average.

On defense, the reverse is true. Teays Valley is last in the county, yielding an average of 70.8 points per contest while Westfall has given up an average of 63 points per game. It would appear that the Mustangs might have the edge but in a game such as this the record book can be tossed out the window. Both schools will field young teams made up mostly of underclassmen.

For Westfall it will definitely be a team game as Coach Mike Eckle can be expected to use his entire squad.

The dean of Pickaway County coaches, Bob Hoover, has been using seven players in most games.

Recent Mustang starters have been Tom Adams, 5-foot-10, guard; Jerry Mowery, 5-foot-7, guard; Larry List, 6-foot-3 center; Chris Weaver, 6-foot-2, forward; Bruce Starkey, 6-foot-2, forward. The sixth man off the bench could be forward Dan Schleich who burned the cords for 16 points in the Unioto game last week.

Others likely to see action will be Jeff Mowery, guard; Randy Hartzell, guard; Mark List, forward; Kevin Creamer, center; Dale Ruoff, forward; and Greg Cooper, guard.

Teays Valley starters have been Mike Fisher, 5-foot-8, guard; John Sanders, 5-foot-10 guard; Rick Queen, 6-foot-3, center; Mark Prater, 6-foot-1 forward; and either Scott Lutz or Allen Ett at the other post. Lutz is 6-foot-4 and Ett is 6-foot.

Bench help is provided by Mark Blue, Craig Foster, Tom Pontious and Jeff Welsh.

Queen leads the Vikings with a 13.2 point average. Starkey is averaging 10 points per game for Westfall.

The action should be just as wild and woolly at the Braves camp but whether the score will be as high remains to be seen.

Circleville and Logan Elm have been nearly equal in defensive points allowed. The Braves lead the county as a team yielding an average of only 54.2 points per game followed closely by the Tigers who have been giving up 56.7 points per contest.

On offense, Circleville trails with an average of 56.8 points per game. Logan Elm is averaging 59.8 points per contest.

On paper then, the two teams appear to be nearly evenly matched, although the Braves could be the favored team. Being county schools, however, it should be a real donnybrook and either team could win. Another attraction will be the Tigers' Toren Bensonhaver and the Braves' Jeff Collins.

Bensonhaver leads the county in scoring with a 19.2 points-per-game average and is second in SCOL scoring. Collins is second in the county with a 15.3 point average.

Expected Circleville starters are Roy Huffer, 5-foot-5, guard; Brian Sealock, five-foot-8, guard; Don Hill, 5-foot-11, center; Toren Bensonhaver, 6-foot-1, forward; Pete Harrison, 6-foot-1, forward.

First off the bench will be Dave Holbrook, Richard Elsea and Richard Pfeleger.

Logan Elm will likely start Jeff Collins, 5-foot-10, guard; Mark Vanover, 5-foot-11, guard; Dan Hill, 6-foot-3, center; Terry Wright, 6-foot-1, forward; Jerry Scanlon, 5-foot-11, forward; or Tom Congrove, 5-foot-11, who plays either guard or forward.

Bench strength will come from Rock Huggins, John Mettler and Mark Martin.

Logan Elm is 3-1 in the Mid State League and overall. Circleville is 3-2 in the SCOL and 3-3 overall.

Fans attending either game should come early for a good seat. Reserve contests begin at 6:30 p.m. and the stands will fill rapidly thereafter. And, as soon as we get our bags of popcorn we'll see you out there.

Bulldogs Bite Bucks In Classic Louisville Tournament, 84-80

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Favored Ohio State had a chance to beat Georgia in regulation play but dropped a heartstopper to the Bulldogs 84-80 in overtime Wednesday at the Louisville Holiday Classic.

The Buckeyes will meet LaSalle in the consolation game Thursday night, while Georgia goes against seventh-ranked Louisville for the championship.

"It was just a matter of us not rebounding or playing well defensively," said Ohio State Coach Eldon Miller. "We had several opportunities to win the game. The key is you have to play 40 minutes of basketball."

Trailing 74-73 with eight seconds left, guard Kelvin Ransey was fouled by Georgia's Charles Carter and went to the line with a one-and-one situation. He hit the first shot but missed the second, sending the game into overtime.

"It was a great game, a great win for Georgia against a very fine Ohio State ball club," said Bulldog mentor John

Guthrie. "I thought we played good basketball."

Georgia's Lavon Mercer, Walter Daniels and Lucius Foster combined for 72 points, with Mercer tossing in 29, including 16 in the second half and four in the overtime. Daniels added 23 points, including 12 in the second half, and Foster had 20.

The great second half efforts of Mercer and Daniels allowed the Bulldogs to overcome a 43-38 halftime deficit for its fourth win in seven games. Ohio State is 6-2.

Freshman center Herb Williams was the Buckeyes' leading scorer with 22 points. Ransey added 19 points and Mike Cline had 10.

A basket by Williams gave Ohio State its last lead at 78-76.

With 2:31 left, Foster tied the game 78-78 with a pair of free throws, and Daniels put the Bulldogs ahead to stay at 80-78 on a jumper with 1:12 to go.

Georgia clinched it on layups by Foster and Daniels for an 84-78 lead with 23 seconds to play.

The biggest lead for Ohio State came as the second half opened when Williams hit a shot to make it 45-38.

Georgia responded with a 16-4 run over the next seven minutes for a 54-49 lead with 12:40 left in the second half.

The battle was even until, with about three minutes left, Georgia went to a four-corner offense after a pair of Daniels free throws had given the Bulldogs a 72-71 lead.

Williams gave Ohio State a 73-72 lead on a 10-foot jumper with 1:35 to play, but Mercer answered with a five-footer as Georgia retook the lead 74-73 with 12 seconds to go.

Carter fouled Ransey on the ensuing inbounds play.

"Our reputation isn't as good as Ohio State's," Guthrie said. "There's no doubt about that. We're just trying to build one."

The Bulldogs will get another shot at improving their reputation tonight when they play host Louisville, 7-1, who outclassed LaSalle 113-85 to gain the championship berth. LaSalle is 3-4.

Bulls Stick 76ers In Rough NBA Tilt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Chicago Bulls Coach Ed Badger wasn't sure what sport he was watching.

"I thought we were playing the Eagles," said Badger, referring to Philadelphia's football team. Actually it was the city's basketball team, the 76ers, who were pounding out a 129-125 overtime victory over Badger's Bulls Wednesday night.

"The wide tackles were trying to fake us out and it seemed like the linebackers were coming in on us," continued Badger following the hard-fought game. "I thought they could have been called for piling on."

George McGinnis, the Sixers' rugged forward, was the hero for the home team with a season-high 37 points. He scored on a dunk with 43 seconds left in overtime to snap a 125-125 tie, then was fouled by Chicago's Mickey Johnson with one second left and hit two free throws to end the scoring.

In other National Basketball Association games, the Portland Trail Blazers defeated the Detroit Pistons 111-106, the Washington Bullets beat the Buffalo Braves 106-87, the Atlanta Hawks trimmed the Indiana Pacers 99-92 and the Denver Nuggets topped the Golden State Warriors 130-108.

The 76ers led by as many as 14 until late in the third period when Chicago scored 11 in a row to climb into contention. Chicago led 118-116 with 48 seconds left to play in regulation, but Julius Erving, who scored 23 points, sank an 18-foot jumper to send the game into overtime.

Neophyte Broncos Face Battle Seasoned Raiders

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
If Hollywood were writing the script, the Dallas Cowboys and Denver Broncos would win Sunday's conference crowns in the National Football League and turn Super Bowl XII into the "Saga of the Quarterback Nobody Wanted."

To give the story the proper dramatic ending, the championship game would develop into a fierce duel featuring rival quarterbacks Roger Staubach of the Cowboys and Craig Morton of the Broncos and end with Morton throwing a last-gasp touchdown pass for the victory.

Then, with the eyes of 60 million TV viewers upon him, he would balk in the spotlights of New Orleans' Superdome — the old, oft-rejected retread who wouldn't die.

That's the way any screenwriter worth his salt would do it. Unfortunately Dallas has a way of fashioning its own scenarios, and they aren't always so poignant or sentimental. In a word, they are devastating.

Yet no one can deny that there has been a certain ethereal quality about Morton's resurrection this year and the inexplicable surge of a Denver team that had been a doormat for 17 years, never before making the playoffs.

It is as if some unseen force has been leading Morton and his orange-shirted nobodies to a rendezvous with the unbelievable.

Morton, out of the University of California, was a member of one of college football's most illustrious classes — the class of '65. The group included Heisman Trophy winner John Huarte of Notre Dame, Joe Namath, Gale Sayers, Dick Butkus, Tucker Fredrickson and a scrambling quarterback from the U.S. Naval Academy named Roger Staubach.

It was at this point that Morton experienced his first, belittling taste of slight. The College All-Stars, playing the NFL's Cleveland Browns in Chicago, voted Staubach their captain. "A natural leader," they said.

Morton had been the No. 1 draft choice of the Cowboys. Dallas also had chosen Staubach in the 10th round as a "future" pick since Roger had a four-year commitment to the Navy. In his first four years at Dallas, Morton wore the seat of his trousers sitting on the bench. The Cowboys' No. 1 quarterback was Don Meredith, a home-town hero from Southern Methodist.

In the summer of 1969, Meredith, at age 31, decided he'd had his fill of football and unceremoniously quit.

The decision coincided with the end of Staubach's naval duty — and so Jolly Roger, as a 27-year-old rookie, moved onto a collision course with Morton, the frustrated stand-in, in the bid for Meredith's vacated job.

Morton got the nod. He was the No. 1 field general in 1969 and 1970, Staubach filling in only when Craig suffered an injured finger in the 1969 exhibition season and after an arm operation early in 1970.

In 1970, the sore-winged Morton led the Cowboys to an 11-2-1 regular-season record and into the Super Bowl, where the team lost to Baltimore 16-13. Staubach never got in the game.

In 1971, Landry rotated the two quarterbacks through the first half of the season. The team floundered. Squad members were divided. Fans became restive booing Morton regularly. Then Landry made the firm decision — Staubach as his quarterback.

It was a spirit-puncturing blow to Morton. Staubach proceeded to lead the Cowboys through the last seven games without a defeat and, as the game's Most Valuable Player, to a 24-3 victory over the Miami Dolphins in the Super Bowl.

Morton again was doomed to a spear-carrying role and complete frustration. He remained a bench-warmer with the Cowboys until mid-1974 when he was peddled to the New York Giants, there to be pilloried by the press and public.

His career appeared headed for the dump heap when suddenly this year the Giants shoved him off on the Broncos. For Morton it was like falling in a bed of roses.

The Broncos named him captain. Fans adored him. At age 34, he found new life and new spirit, leading the Broncos to the best record in the league. Can the fairy tale really end there?

Louisville, Nevada-Las Vegas and Maryland are finding that home is the friendliest place to spend the holidays.

While other college basketball teams travel to places like Florida, the West Coast or Hawaii to play in holiday tournaments, those three nationally ranked schools are hosting their own festivals — and not treating their guests too kindly. All three posted first-round victories Wednesday night.

The seventh-ranked Louisville Cardinals, behind 29 points by Darrell Griffith and 23 by Rick Wilson, overpowered LaSalle 113-85 in a first-round game of the Louisville Holiday Classic.

Louisville will meet Georgia in the finals. Georgia beat Ohio State 84-80 in overtime as Lavon Mercer scored 29 points, including 16 in the second half and four in the extra period.

Ninth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas beat Gonzaga 91-68 in the first round of the Las Vegas Holiday Classic as Earl Evans scored 24 points and pulled down nine rebounds. In the other first-round game, Matt Maderos scored 17 points to help UC-Santa Barbara beat Seattle 58-55.

Maryland, rated No. 14, went on a 21-6 tear to start the second half and defeated Western Kentucky 91-78 in the first round of the Maryland Invitational tournament. Freshman Albert King scored eight points in the decisive burst for the Terps and Bill Bryant had six. Both finished with 19.

In the final, Maryland will meet Georgia Tech, which beat St. John's, N.Y. 73-67 as Tico Brown scored 12 of his 20 points in the final 6½ minutes.

In other games involving Top Twenty teams, No. 15 Indiana beat Florida 73-60 to win the championship of the Gator Bowl tournament; No. 17 Kansas routed Missouri 96-49 in a first-round game of the Big Eight tournament, and No. 19 San Francisco topped Austin Peay 75-66 in the first round of the All-College tourney at Oklahoma City.

LaSalle Coach Paul Westhead was very impressed by Louisville.

"Louisville just exploded like out of a rocket," he said. "They jumped over the tops of people. You just try to contain them. I thought for 30 to 32 minutes, we did a good job; we just couldn't do it for 40 minutes."

Nevada-Las Vegas, 12-0, had no trouble posting its 70th straight home-court victory, moving out to a 43-22 halftime lead and then coasting home. Paul Cathey scored 18 points and pulled down a tournament record 28 rebounds for Gonzaga.

Maryland impressed Western Kentucky Coach Jim Richards with its burst after halftime. "Maryland was an awesome team at the start of the second half," said Richards. "They certainly are an explosive outfit."

Wayne Radford scored 21 points and Wayne Radford added 16 as the Indiana Hoosiers beat Florida in a tense defensive battle for the Gator Bowl title. Indiana is now 8-1, Florida 7-2.

Greg Sanders scored 31 points to help St. Bonaventure to an easy 103-75 victory over Jacksonville in the consolation game.

Kansas beat Missouri by the widest margin in the 70-year history of their rivalry as Darnell Valentine led a balanced attack with 20 points.

Oklahoma center Al Beal scored seven points in overtime in the first game of the night to lead Oklahoma past Iowa State 74-69.

San Francisco, getting a lift with the return of 7-foot center Bill Cartwright to full-time duty, wore down Austin Peay in the second half of their All-College matchup. Cartwright, who suffered a broken wrist in preseason, scored 20 points.

In another first-round game, Archie Aldrich scored 24 points to carry Miami, Ohio, past Texas A&M 79-68.

In perhaps the most dramatic performance of the night, Billy Harrington came off the bench with four seconds remaining for his first appearance of the game and hit a 30-

Cowboys See Tough Battle With Vikings

DALLAS (AP) — So you think the Dallas Cowboys should be favored in their National Conference title game with Minnesota because they are playing on home turf at Texas Stadium.

Don't rush out and bet your lunch money on it, even though the oddsmakers have installed the Cowboys as 11-point favorites for Sunday's game that decides the NFC entry into Super Bowl XII in New Orleans.

Fact: Minnesota has NEVER lost in Texas Stadium.

The Vikings ripped Dallas 27-10 in the 1973 NFC title game, trimmed the Cowboys 23-21 in the 1974 regular season and took a 16-13 preseason decision in 1975.

So much for the home field jinx. "We might have a little edge because the Vikings have to travel but the home field advantage is greatly exaggerated unless you are playing in a wild place like Denver," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry.

He added, "I'd call it a tossup ball game."

McDowell stopped Lancaster St. Marys, 33-22, and Teays Valley nipped Canal Winchester, 37-35, at the buzzer to set up an all Pickaway County finals tonight in the McDowell Seventh Grade Invitational Basketball Tournament at Spangler Memorial gym.

It will be Lancaster St. Marys meeting Canal Winchester in the 6:30 p.m. consolation contest with McDowell and Teays Valley battling for the championship at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

It was McDowell all the way as they led 8-6, 20-9, 31-13 before winning 33-22. Terry Collins led the Braves with 11 points, Phil Minor, Chris Seimer and Mark Humphrey each had six while Seth Jones and Vic Stevens both tallied two. Tim Hatem had 10 points for St. Marys.

Greg Hollenbank rammed a two-pointer through the nets from underneath at the buzzer to give the Vikings a two-point victory and a berth in the finals. Teays Valley trailed 6-5 at the end of the first period, led 17-11 at halftime and held a 27-22 edge at the end of the third period. Hollenbank burned the nets with 23 markers for the Vikings, Steve Seymour and Doug Hoover each netted four while Jim Miller and Doug Miller both hit three. Doug Harter paced Canal Winchester with 15 points and Rusty Green added 10.

New Browns Coach Rutigliano Says Errors Must Be Eliminated

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Browns have been error-prone in recent years — both mentally and physically — and new coach Sam Rutigliano is making the elimination of mistakes an immediate goal.

"You eliminate mistakes by demanding players habitually do things the right way," Rutigliano said Wednesday, his first day on the job. "The key word is habitually; doing things over and over until they become habit. Any time you tolerate mistakes, you invite mistakes."

"Tom Landry gets results by staring at the man who makes a mistake," the former New Orleans Saints receiver coach continued. "Vince Lombardi got results by harping. But I'll guarantee you both men were extremely well organized. They had a philosophy the players understood. I'll also guarantee you all of them, (Don) Shula, Landry, Lombardi, (Bud) Grant, are and were great communicators."

"You know the saying, 'If you buy me a fish, I'll eat today. If you teach me how to fish, I'll eat forever.' Establish a philosophy and teach — that's it in a few words," he added.

Rutigliano said the toughest job a teacher has is "to get people to do things they don't want to do, and like it."

Browns owner Art Modell admitted Tuesday, after introducing Rutigliano as the Browns' fifth coach, the organization has "an unblemished record of blowing it" in personnel decisions.

Wednesday, Rutigliano talked about ways to eliminate that problem.

"There are 28 teams," he explained. "If you look at them you'll discover that many, many players were developed by patience — players who weren't top draft choices. Oakland is expert at this. The Raiders develop players. Prime examples are Fred Biletnikoff and Dave Casper. Both came slowly and now are among the very best."

"Of course, every team makes mistakes," he said. "Even Dallas. Some of its top choices were failures. The object is to cut these mistakes to the minimum. This is going to be my No. 1 objective."

"And, if we do make a mistake, it's going to be one made in absolute agreement by all of us," Rutigliano said. "Before we cut somebody, we want to be as positive as we can be that he doesn't have enough to develop into a good pro."

Rutigliano noted everything he says now is just words, since he's never been an NFL head coach. But he added, "Time will be the test. You never know how you'll react until the bullets start to fly."

Rutigliano, hoping to complete his staff by Feb. 1, Wednesday talked to Rod Humenuik, who was offensive line coach under deposed head man Forrest Gregg, and former associate Dick MacPherson, who currently is Coach at the University of Massachusetts.

"There was no offer and no acceptance," Rutigliano said of his hour-long talk with Humenuik. "We had a very good chat and I will see him again tomorrow (today)."

Of MacPherson, who would coach his linebackers, Rutigliano said, "There is no question he could make a big contribution to our staff. He is an outstanding coach and man. Dick has a good situation at Massachusetts. He must consider whether coming to Cleveland would be in his best interest."

'Long Distance Marriages' Successful

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Despite the high cost and potential for strain associated with living apart to pursue separate careers, the number of "long-distance marriages" will increase, says a Kent State University sociologist.

Betty M. Kirschner said Wednesday that her interviews of 160 married couples with separate households showed a large number of long-distance marriages are surprisingly successful.

Women are rearranging their personal lives to make marriage and careers co-equal, Ms. Kirschner said.

As to the amount of time couples spend together, she said, "It has become commonplace to talk about the interaction between child and parent as depending on quality rather than quantity. Might this not be the same with adults?"

She said she interviewed wives and husbands separately and then together. Among her conclusions were:

—Most of the couples with long-distance marriages have professional careers.

—The longer a couple had been married prior to living apart, the more positive they felt about sustaining the marriage in spite of the separation.

—If the couple could see each other frequently, such as each weekend, the arrangement appeared to work well.

—Many of the marriages suffer because of high travel and telephone expenses, and the cost of running two households.

"There is nothing new about this lifestyle," Ms. Kirschner said. "The two-location family is not unusual historically."

She said that war, "from the Crusades right through Vietnam," has probably been the biggest factor in separating husbands from wives and families. When immigrants came to the United States, the husband often arrived first, and sent for his family when he had saved enough money, she said.

Similar conditions apply to many poor people too. Many rubber workers in Akron rejoin their families in West Virginia on weekends, she said.

Malaysian Prime Minister Speaks At OU

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Malaysia Deputy Prime Minister Mahathir Bin Mohamad has urged support for a national integration policy for his country.

The prime minister spoke Tuesday at the opening session of the ninth annual convention of the Malaysian Students Association of North America.

He said such a policy would provide equal educational and professional opportunities for the indigenous Malaysian, as well as the Chinese and Indian citizens of the Southeast Asian nation.

About 350 Malaysian students studying at colleges and universities in North America are attending the conference through Friday at Ohio University in Athens.

Ohio University has an educational contract with the MARA Institute of Technology of Kuala Lumpur under which OU's College of Business Administration offers a joint degree with the Malaysian school.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Since 1962, announcer Ed McMahon has heralded Johnny Carson's frequent visits to "Tonight." He also makes a few bucks on outside work. Come the New Year, he tries a new venture.

He'll host "Goin' Home," a half-hour syndicated show in which he accompanies various stars to their hometowns, big and small. It isn't a series yet. Only the pilot show has been taped so far.

In it, he goes with country music's Roy Clark to Clark's tiny hometown of Meherrin, Va. The show will air in January on about 60 cities. If stations like and buy the idea, a series will result.

"We're pretty pleased with it," said McMahon, a tall, hearty gent born 54 years ago in Detroit. "We've got a good idea, so we'll see what happens. We hope it'll sell."

He says he's already got agreements from such as Joe Namath, Alice Cooper and Burt Reynolds to join him on "Goin' Home."

As with Clark's show, he said, each homecoming will be taped on location. That he'll also be on location — but remain a regular on "Tonight" — "is the toughest part I have," McMahon said.

"I'll have to do 26 of these (initially) and they're always in places like Meherrin, Va. They're not easy to get to." The problem of travel time is eased a bit by a new NBC contract he signed last year. He says it gives him nine weeks of vacation per year from "Tonight," though not all at once, of course.

The deal isn't quite as lavish as the one Carson recently signed with NBC. It reportedly gives Johnny 15 weeks off a year, plus 25 three-day work weeks and 12 four-day work weeks.

McMahon said if "Goin' Home" goes to series form, plans call for him to be both the host and guest of one episode, to visit the town in which he was raised, Lowell, Mass.

He said he lived there with his grandmother because, when he was a kid, he got tired of knocking about the country with his parents. His father, he added, was a professional fundraiser.

They rarely stayed in one town longer than a few months, he said. After his father finished one job, it was on to another task in another town and Ed never had a place he really could call home.

So he asked his folks if he could live with his grandmother.

"That was a very sad, traumatic moment for me — but they understood my problem," said McMahon, who attended Boston College and started his radio career at station WLLH in Lowell.

During World War II, he was a Marine flight instructor and test pilot, flying Corsair fighters. But not in combat. He was to go overseas, but his orders were canceled on V-J Day.

He went back to broadcasting, then was recalled to duty during the Korean war. He says he worked for Marine artillery, flying 85 missions in a tiny L-19 spotter plane. Which is no way to grow old. "You bet," laughed Big Ed McMahon. "But after you do that, you can do anything."

The author of the Declaration of Independence was Thomas Jefferson, but few Americans knew this until the fact appeared in a newspaper in 1784, according to the National Geographic Society.

White House Uses Specialists

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's six-nation tour has put such a strain on his own small staff of advance planners that the White House has borrowed helpers from throughout government, and even recruited a Republican refugee.

In this city filled with perennial candidates, there is no numerical shortage of specialists who go forth in advance of their bosses to make detailed travel preparations.

There may be a shortage of highly qualified and effective specialists, however.

That's one reason Eric Rosenberger, who once served as chief press advance man for former Presidents Nixon and Ford, is in France preparing for Carter's visit next week to the World War II beaches of Normandy.

Rosenberger, who quit the Ford team before last year's campaign, is regarded by many as one of the best advance men around. Since he never has appeared to be a dedicated partisan and came highly recommended, the Carterites recruited him for temporary duty.

Carter's regular three-member advance team, headed by Ellis Woodward, obviously could not do all the minutely-detailed planning necessary for stops in six countries on two continents. So Rosenberger and at least a dozen others were dispatched to cities along Carter's route.

One recruit is Robert Neuman, press secretary to Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, one of Carter's most determined opponents for the 1976 Democratic nomination. He was sent to Poland.

Another is Mike Pohl, an aide to Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles, who is in India.

Dennis Oakes, a lawyer in private practice here, was assigned to Iran. He formerly did advance work for Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.

Frances Lewine, veteran White House reporter now with the Department of Transportation, is with Pohl in India.

The White House also has temporarily reduced the ranks of the unemployed by one, hiring Dan Dwyer, a campaign advance man for Carter who has been job hunting.

Other recruits: Griff Ellison from the Agency for International Development, Carroll Ann Rambo from the Democratic National Committee, John Thorne from the Customs Bureau, Greg Andrews from the Transportation Department, Paul Costello from ACTION, Mike McShane from the Department of Energy and Mary Massorini and Mary Hanley from the State Department.

When foreign leaders visit Carter, he gives them a state dinner and they provide reciprocal entertainment the following evening. However, Carter has made it a practice to avoid the reciprocal events, sending as emissaries Vice President Walter F.

Mondale and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

During his foreign travels, Carter will move his policy another step forward. He will be entertained at state dinners but will not attempt to provide any reciprocal feasting. He may set a whole new style in diplomatic exchanges.

School Suit Filed, Assignments Uncertain

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — School assignments for the second semester in Dayton schools remained uncertain today after the NAACP filed notice that it was appealing a scrapped desegregation order.

Richard Austin, NAACP attorney, said Wednesday he expected U.S. District Judge Carl Rubin to refuse to stay his decision earlier this month to end court ordered desegregation in Dayton schools. But Austin said the NAACP would ask the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati to keep the busing order operating while the case is appealed.

Rubin, on Dec. 15, threw out the plan which called for busing 18,000 of Dayton's 38,000 pupils. Rubin said the NAACP had failed to prove the school board intentionally tried to racially segregate schools.

"Important issues involving the constitutional rights of black school children in Dayton and irreparable harm are at issue," Austin said in his notice of appeal. "... and the Supreme Court of the United States has suggested that the plan of desegregation remain in effect for this school year."

Austin said he feared that the school board may change the plan before the Feb. 6 semester change.

Some school board members indicated a change might be made for the second semester.

William E. Goodwin, Dayton School Board President, said he favors "a freedom of choice plan" which would allow students to either stay where they are or return to neighborhood schools.

The Supreme Court sent the case back to Rubin last June instructing him to hold new hearings to determine whether the evidence justified a systemwide busing plan he installed for 1977-78.

After four days of hearings in November, Rubin ruled Dec. 15 in favor of the school board. He said the NAACP had failed to prove its case according to recent Supreme Court guidelines.

Warm Trend Is Forecast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A warming trend will account for higher temperatures, perhaps as high as 32-degrees, across the Plains today while another weather system continues to keep Florida's citrus country under refrigeration.

Early morning temperatures were running in the mid to high 20s, with some low 30s in Kansas and Missouri, which is about five degrees warmer than 24 hours earlier.

Temperatures in parts of northern Florida are in the 20s. Frost was expected over much of the state today.

Readings were below zero in the upper Mississippi Valley and extreme northern New England. Twenties prevailed from Illinois to Mississippi and eastward to the middle and south Atlantic coast.

Isolated rain and snow showers covered the area from northern California through northern Nevada and from Oregon into Idaho, Montana and Washington. Snow fell in the higher elevations.

Precipitation also ranged Arizona to Mississippi.

Scattered rain showers, drizzle and fog extended through much of Texas and extreme south central Oklahoma into Louisiana.

Snow fell in North Dakota, Minnesota and in the Great Lakes region.

Early morning temperatures around the nation ranged from five-below-zero at Marquette, Mich., to 66 at Brownsville, Texas.

Judge Orders Man To Mansfield Reformatory

Pickaway County Common Pleas Court Judge William Ammer today sentenced an Ashville man to concurrent terms in the Mansfield Reformatory, after the defendant entered a guilty plea for charges against him.

Samuel R. Birchfield, Route 1, Ashville, was charged with carrying a concealed weapon and trafficking in drugs. He was sentenced to 1-10 years for carrying a concealed weapon, and received a six months to five years sentence on the drug charge.

In other actions taken by Judge Ammer, Jacob Jarvis, Fort Wayne, Indiana, originally charged with possession of criminal tools, was sentenced to six months in the Pickaway County Jail after he pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of attempted possession of criminal tools.

Merle A. Harvey, Cleo Drive, Orient, pleaded guilty to non-support. He was sentenced to six months to five years in the Mansfield Reformatory, but Ammer suspended the sentence and placed Harvey on three years probation after he ordered Harvey to make restitution for the money paid to his wife by the Welfare Department.

Bruce Rutherford, 525 E. Mound St.,

received a suspended 30 day jail sentence and was ordered to pay a $50 fine, after he pleaded guilty to resisting arrest. Rutherford was also placed on three years probation for committing aggravated assault on a Circleville Police Officer.

Bombers Kill 2 Children

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ethiopian jet fighters bombed the cities of Hargeisa and Berbera in northwestern Somalia Tuesday, killing two children and wounding 13 other persons, Somalia's official radio reported today.

Eight Ethiopian warplanes were involved in the afternoon raids, the radio said. Four struck at Hargeisa, Somalia's second largest city, while four other jets bombed the port city of Berbera, located along the Gulf of Aden.

According to the Somali radio broadcast monitored here, all casualties occurred at Hargeisa where Somali forces shot down two Ethiopian planes — Soviet-made Mig-21 jets.

Another Ethiopian plane, an American-built F-5 jet, was shot down at Berbera by Somali forces, the radio said, but additional details of the bombing incidents were not disclosed.

Hargeisa, located about 45 miles from the Ethiopian border, was reportedly attacked by Ethiopian jets earlier this month and at least nine persons were said to have died in the bombing incident.

In announcing Tuesday's bombing incidents, a regional secretary of Somalia's Socialist Party called the attacks "barbaric" and said they were part of a "Russo-Cuban conspiracy against Somalia", according to the broadcast.

Although Somalia and Ethiopia both espouse Marxism, they are traditional rivals in the Horn of Africa and are in a virtual state of war over Ethiopia's disputed Ogaden region, where

Insulators' Families Will Get Money

CLEVELAND (AP) — The families of 26 insulation installers who died or became ill because of asbestos inhalation will share in a $1,840,000 settlement reached Wednesday with 17 corporations.

The agreement in the court of U.S. District Judge John M. Manos was reached with such firms as Johns Manville Products Corp., GAF Corp., Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., Celotex Corp., Raybestos Manhattan Corp. and Flintkote Corp.

Robert E. Sweeney, an attorney for the plaintiffs, charged in the 26 suits filed since 1972 that the corporations failed to properly protect workers from asbestos inhalation and exposure, which he said causes lung cancer, abdominal cancer and rectal cancer to workers in the construction trades.

Asbestos, which is mined and crushed, is widely used as a binder and insulator for many products.

Sixteen of the 26 cases involved the death of the workers, Sweeney said. From 150 to 200 similar cases have been filed throughout the country, he added.

Manos had conducted pretrial hearings for more than 1 1/2 years and the case was to go to trial next month. Sweeney said this was the first time that a federal judge has consolidated cases involving product liability. At one time, Manos rented a ballroom at a downtown Cleveland hotel so that about 80 lawyers, corporation officials and insurance company officials could discuss a possible settlement.

The amount that each company will have to pay each worker or his family has yet to be worked out, Sweeney said. All the workers were members of the International Association of Heat and Frost Insulators and Asbestos Workers Union.

All the companies in the case have removed asbestos from their products and replaced it with compounds such as fibreglass, said Thomas W. White, another defense lawyer.

Deputies Handle Two Mishaps

The Pickaway County Sheriff's Office investigated two injury accidents Wednesday, according to reports at the Franklin Street headquarters.

The first mishap occurred at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday on State Route 104, two tenths of a mile south of milepost two in Wayne Twp.

According to the report, Patrick D. Hegarty, 17, Harrisburg, was southbound on SR 104 when his vehicles' right tires dropped onto the berm of the roadway, causing him to lose control of the car. The vehicle traveled left of center across the roadway and 88 feet down the left berm, striking a fence post and coming to rest shortly after.

Hegarty received multiple abrasions in the crash. He was transported to Berger Hospital by the Circleville Emergency Medical Squad, where he was treated and released. Deputy Sheriff Terry Frazier investigated the accident.

The second crash took place at the intersection of Ashville Pike and Duval Road at 5:25 p.m. Wednesday.

The report states that Barbara Jo Lucks, 25, Bexley, was northbound on Ashville Pike and was approaching the intersection with Duval Road. A car driven by Mary Lois Anderson, 53, Ashville, was southbound on Ashville Pike and was preparing to make a left turn onto Duval Road.

The report states that Ms. Anderson turned her car into the path of the Lucks auto. After the initial impact, the Lucks auto continued through the intersection, striking a fence owned by Dorothy M. Roberts, Ashville.

Both ladies suffered minor injuries in the accident. They were taken to the Berger Hospital Emergency Room by the Harrison Twp. Squad and also by a private motorist, where they were treated and released. The accident is still under investigation by Deputy Sheriff Dale Parish.

Chew Merges With Thomson Newspaper Chain

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — Chew Newspapers of Ohio, which includes three dailies and a weekly publication, have merged with Thomson Newspaper Publishing Co. Inc.

The announcement was made jointly in Wednesday's editions of the Xenia Daily Gazette, Middletown Journal, Piqua Daily Call and the Franklin Chronicle, by Chew president W.A. Siebenthaler and St. Clair McCabe, executive vice president and chief operating officer for Thomson.

Under the merger, the newspapers will operate as Chew Newspapers of Ohio Inc., a division of Thomson with local editorial policies and management unchanged, Siebenthaler said.

Financial arrangements were not disclosed.

The Chew chain began with the Xenia Gazette founded as a weekly in 1868. It was acquired Nov. 1, 1877, by James Parker Chew who converted it to a daily Nov. 21, 1881.

James A. Chew, a grandson, assumed control in 1912. The Middletown Journal was acquired in 1924, the Piqua Call in 1959 and the Franklin Chronicle in 1963.

Siebenthaler is James A. Chew's son-in-law.

The merger gives Thomson a total of 95 dailies and 20 weeklies with a total circulation in the United States of 1,550,000.
